Price of progress

A PILE OF RUBBLE is all that remains of the historic Van Engelen home at Blue Lakes Boulevard North and Heyburn Avenue. The huge house, long a Twin Falls landmark, was razed Sunday and Monday to clear the lot for construction of a restaurant. Several trees on the site, including a magnificent fir, were uprooted to clear the lot. The house was built in 1908. (Photo by Mike Robertson.)

US offers money reform plan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States surprised the international financial community today with a broad-based plan for reform of the world's monetary system.

The proposal called for free trade, a reduced role for gold and the dollar, more power for the International Monetary Fund (IMF), more flexibility for currency exchange rates and a more critical role for national reserve assets.

The program, alluded to Monday by President Nixon, was laid before the annual meeting of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank by Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz. Nixon, in his address to the groups, called it "the best thinking of my top economic advisers."

Basic to the plan is a proposed widening of the margins within which exchange rates for the world's currencies may fluctuate in the free market. There also would be a mechanism to discourage nations from running excessively large trade surpluses or deficits.

Special drawing rights, the so-called "paper gold" administered by the IMF, would replace the dollar as the cornerstone to which the value of all other currencies would be linked. Gold, as repeatedly urged by the United States, would be sharply reduced in importance as a reserve asset.

Up to now, the United States has shied away from laying out a blueprint for monetary reform, insisting that the major powers must first agree to general principles of economic equity.

Shultz did not indicate why the administration had switched tactics, but the American proposal, wholly unexpected at the start of this week, was sure to cause extensive comment during the remaining four days of the meetings.

Shultz said trade controls, such as import surcharges or across the board taxes, would be allowed in extreme cases to help correct balance of payments difficulties, but that the greater emphasis would be laid on encouraging freer trade and open capital markets.

A revitalized IMF would be the guardian of the new monetary order and would work in closer harmony with the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT) organization than it has in the past.

Most Idahoans would approve any monetary reform proposal if it increased the amount of money in their pockets.

3 released fliers arrive in Peking

PEKING (UPI) — Three American prisoners of war released by North Vietnam arrived in Peking today on their way home. The leader of a U.S. antiwar group that flew to Hanoi to get the trio said the Peking trip was "arranged" for them.

Originally the released POWs and their relatives and companions had been expected to leave Hanoi and return to the United States by way of Laos. But plans were suddenly changed and their itinerary was switched to return them home via China and Moscow. They are expected to arrive here in the United States Thursday night.

David Dellinger, a member of the Chicago Seven and leader of the antiwar group that went to Hanoi to get the men, told newsmen who asked why they had come to China, "It wasn't in our hands. Someone arranged it."

Payments OK'd

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Mounting a direct challenge to administration policy in the wake of huge wheat sales to Russia, the House Agriculture Committee today approved a bill to compensate wheat farmers who lost money because of the deal.

Prospects for passage of the bill remained uncertain, however, because a similar measure was rejected last week by the Senate Agriculture Committee.

The House group approved the bill by a 23-10 vote. It would provide special, one-shot "deficiency" price support payments to an uncertain number — of wheat growers who sold their crop early this summer.

Missile treaty praised

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon describes as a "historic milestone" the completion by Congress of ratification of the U.S.-Soviet temporary treaty limiting the size and number of offensive nuclear missiles.

The House brought the congressional process to an end Monday by approving on a 306-4 roll call vote a Senate-initiated amendment insisting on numerical missile "equality" in any permanent agreement following the interim, five-year pact.

White House Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon was "extremely pleased" at the House action.

"The overwhelming vote in both Houses is a gratifying expression of support for these historic arms limitation agreements," Ziegler said.

Tax cut chances said dim

By RICHARD C. NICH
Times-News managing editor
TWIN FALLS — Even if revenue sharing funds come flooding to Idaho, the prospects for local tax cuts this year are bleak.

The problem is timing. According to taxing officials, there simply may not be time to change tax notices to reflect any desired reductions this year. Any tax break would be postponed until next year.

Tax reductions are one of two alternatives facing local units of government. "Additional spending is the other."

Take a hypothetical case. Suppose Twin Falls City councilmen decide to cut taxes by the $321,000 they are expected to receive for this year's revenue sharing share.

At the earliest, should revenue sharing be quickly approved by both House and Senate and be signed into law by President Nixon, the first payments to the city would come in October.

But the city would be caught in a web of state law that: — Sets a date in September for the city to tell county tax collectors how much tax money the city needs.

— Sets a Nov. 1 deadline for the county to send out tax notices to taxpayers.

— And that sets a Dec. 20 deadline for payment of the first portion of property taxes.

Donald Loveland, an Idaho state tax commissioner, said today — the Idaho Tax Commission has no authority to change the deadlines set by state law. He said the counties would have to meet the deadlines as best they could. But according to Twin Falls County Clerk Harold Lancaster, counties have no chance to change the tax bills this year to reflect the impact of revenue sharing.

"If this revenue sharing does become a reality," Lancaster said, "it would be very difficult to do anything about it until next year."

In the judgment of both Loveland and Lancaster, the most practical thing for units to local government to do would be to hold the revenue sharing checks until next year.

Lancaster suggested giving a doubly large tax cut next year as an alternative to giving half as large a tax cut this year and next.

According to Loveland, "This could develop that some surplus funds may be looked at in the following year. It's too bad this didn't happen earlier in the year."

The difference to local taxpayers is a big one. In the Twin Falls City example, possible reduction of taxes to compensate for expected revenue sharing funds for 1972 would be large.

The city has asked the county to raise $1.25 million in local taxes. With possible influx of an estimated $321,241 in revenue sharing funds, the city could reduce taxes by that amount. This would give a hypothetical reduction of up to one-fourth in city tax bills expected to be mailed out by Nov. 1.

In dollars, the reduction at stake in the Twin Falls example is about $22.88 for each $10,000 of property.

Wait-and-see attitude on area 'revenue share'

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer
TWIN FALLS — City and county officials are taking a "wait and see" approach to possible massive infusions of revenue sharing funds.

County and city officials, who stand to divide about $1.8 million in the Magic Valley, say they are still not aware of provisions and restrictions the federal funds will carry.

All agree they have good uses to which the additional revenue can be put, providing their projects can be funded in this manner. All also agree they would hope to be able to reduce taxes, but say this year's levies and budgets are set and tax reductions would probably not come for another year.

Some question is also raised by the local level government officials as to when they would actually obtain the revenue.

"We haven't seen any money yet, so we aren't spending it yet," Merl Leonard, county commissioner, said of the Twin Falls County.

Mayor Garis Robertson, Burley, said his city has not given any thought to tax reduction and in checking with the executive director of the Association of Idaho Cities, was told cities and counties using the revenue for tax reductions would stand to lose up to half of their allocations.

"As I understand the situation, this money is to be used for needed city improvements and programs we can't afford on the annual tax revenue."

"In Burley we have a number of items where we badly need the extra revenue."

Ex-Hailey mayor dies

HAILEY — Robert R. Horne, 83, Hailey, was pronounced dead on arrival Monday evening at Moritz Community Hospital, Sun Valley.

Horne, a former Hailey mayor, had been suffering from a long illness.

Funeral services are pending at Bird Funeral Home.

Hank, Viet envoy meet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dr. Henry A. Kissinger met secretly in Paris today with Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy, Hanoi's representatives to the Vietnam peace talks, the White House said.

The White House, billing newsmen at home before dawn, would not disclose how long the talks would last. It was known that Kissinger was in Washington Monday.

"In accordance with our agreement with the other side I have no other information to provide you on this meeting,"

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said.

It was Kissinger's 17th meeting with the Hanoi negotiators over the past two years and the second in 11 days.

After his Sept. 15 meeting with Tho, Kissinger told a White House briefing that he considered that negotiations with the Communists were "serious," but he reflected no optimism that a settlement was imminent.

"All I can say is that the fact these talks are going on would indicate a certain seriousness," Kissinger said Sept. 16 at the White House briefing.

Ziegler would not say how long today's talks between Kissinger and the Communist negotiators would last. Nor would Ziegler say when Kissinger flew to France.

Tho is a member of North Vietnam's Politburo. Thuy is chief of Hanoi's delegation to the peace talks.

Kissinger's previous meeting with Thuy and Tho followed by four days' disclosure of a Communist proposal for a three-way government of "National Concord" for South Vietnam, which the Communists said would not be dominated by either Communists or the present Saigon regime.

Kissinger said that proposal was not satisfactory to the United States. But he also asserted that "There is no purely military solution."

"We hope the North Vietnamese also realize the only alternative is to negotiate on a basis that is just to both sides," Kissinger said Sept. 16.

McGovern gaining

DETROIT (UPI) — Democratic nominee George McGovern has narrowed the gap between himself and President Nixon by six per cent since Sept. 1, Louis Harris said.

"If I were Richard Nixon, I'd be afraid," Harris, pollster, Monday told the Economic Club of Detroit in a speech.

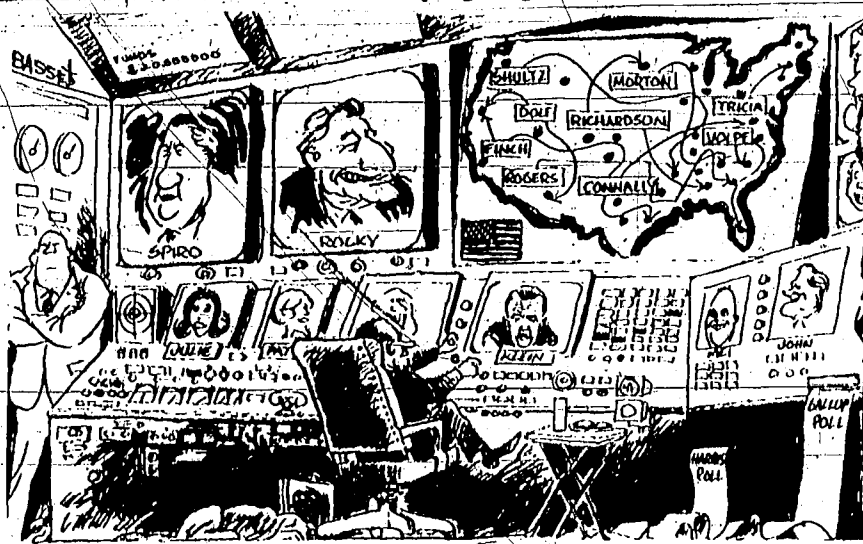

Harris said his latest poll, Sept. 19-21, showed Nixon with 59 per cent, McGovern with 31 per cent and 10 per cent undecided.

Harris did not give details of how the poll was conducted, the groups interviewed or the size of the sampling involved.

Engineers hear TF airport plans

TWIN FALLS — Recently completed improvements and those planned for the future as needed at the Twin Falls City-County Airport were outlined here Monday.

Engineers International representatives from the Boise office of Barton, Stoddard, Milhollin and Higgins Engineering, which is making a continuing study for the South Idaho Regional Airport Authority, met with the Twin Falls City-County Airport Commission.

Part of their study involves available air travel facilities and those planned to meet area needs.

Some time ago the Twin Falls airport commission agreed to cooperate fully with the study, City Manager Jean Milar said. As a result the Monday meeting was called with city and county officials, Airport Manager Harry Merrick, and members of the airport commission.

Airport Commission Chairman Bill Powell said improvements in the past few years have included strengthening and resurfacing the runways, improving parking facilities and the terminal building, paving taxiways for general aviation users and installing security fencing. An instrument landing system has been approved for installation.

City Manager Jean Milar said items being considered for further improvement as needed include the enhancing of fire fighting and rescue equipment at the field; further runway improvement; care and maintenance of those now being used; coordinating efforts with the Federal Aviation Administration for construction of a proposed control tower; preparing and expanding the down areas and taxiways, and further strengthening and lengthening runways.

Miller said the FAA is expected to have representatives in Twin Falls this week to complete the study for a control tower facility.

Milar said the airport commission and city and county officials will cooperate with the regional airport study crews in providing any statistics and other information necessary.

Drug charge names TF man

TWIN FALLS — David James Woodhead, 19, Twin Falls, was arrested Monday and charged with illegal possession of marijuana by Twin Falls Police.

Woodhead was released after posting $300 bond set in magistrate court.

Demos set meet

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Democratic Central Committee will meet Wednesday night to make plans for opening a county election headquarters.

Chairman Vincent Smazal said the meeting, called for 8 p.m. in the city hall auditorium will include plans for the scheduled Oct. 20 party dinner, at which Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, Democratic senatorial candidate William E. (Bud) Davis, and Democratic Second Congressional District candidate Willis Ludlow are scheduled to appear.

Workshop plans drawn

TWIN FALLS — Idaho mental health officials met with directors of the Twin Falls County chapter Monday night.

Dale Higer, state president, and James Manser, executive secretary, both Boise, reported on state activities. Higer said a report will be presented soon by a committee of state volunteers who inspected the state hospitals at Blackfoot and Orofino.

He said further inspection is planned of mental health clinics in Boise and Pocatello and the state organization plans to present budgetary requests to the state legislature which will in some cases support the Idaho Division of Mental Health and in some cases not.

Plans were discussed at the Monday night meeting for a workshop slated for Nov. 9-11 at the Twin Falls Ascension Episcopal Church to orient the community to the many volunteer opportunities when the regional mental health facilities become a reality in Magic Valley.

Dr. John P. Fabian, Lutheran minister from Seattle, will lead the workshop which can be termed leadership training for volunteers, according to Rev. Albert Allen, Episcopal minister, who is chairman of the event.

Rev. Allen is being assisted in planning for the workshop by Rev. John Wallace, Lotus Schmucker, chapter president; Lorayne Smith and Sue Pack.

The next board meeting is scheduled for Oct. 30 and the annual meeting of the county mental health group is planned Nov. 27.

Charges filed in TF robbery

TWIN FALLS — Charges have been filed against a Twin Falls man who was shot in an alleged robbery of Shelby's Market early Monday morning.

Police Chief Frank Barnett said a complaint has been filed and a warrant issued for the arrest of John Stanley Daley, 29, charging him with armed robbery and resisting arrest.

Daley was critically wounded while resisting arrest shortly after 3 a.m. in the incident at the market. Barnett said officers told Daley to halt and he pointed a handgun at them.

Police opened fire but Daley did not return it, Barnett said. Daley was hit four times in the shooting.

Daley is listed in critical condition in Magic Valley Memorial Hospital today following surgery Monday. One of the shots hit him in the chest near the heart.

Barnett said that the warrant has not been served on Daley yet. The amount of money recovered in the incident has not been disclosed by police.

City Manager Jean Milar today attributed the fact there were no other injuries in the Monday morning shooting to the rigid hand gun training of Twin Falls Police officers.

He said officers of the city police department maintain a continuing training program in marksmanship and hand gun firing. With a number of persons in the area at the time, uncalculated and hasty shooting could have resulted in death or injury of innocent persons.

Ravenscroft attacks Gem Demos' platform

TWIN FALLS — State Rep. Vernon Ravenscroft combined an attack on the state Democratic platform with an appeal Monday to give voice to the "silent majority."

Ravenscroft, R-Tuttle, made his remarks before a gathering of about 35 Twin Falls Republican women at an afternoon meeting at the Turf Club in Twin Falls.

Also attending the gathering were Louise Shaddock, administrative assistant to Rep. Orval Hansen, and Ralph Olmstead, Republican candidate for the state House of Representatives from Twin Falls District 25.

Comparing Republican and Democratic state party platforms on a number of points, Ravenscroft said the Democratic platform was created through a procedure of an "open forum, an open caucus approach," which he said allowed persons without long experience in the party to become involved deeply at one instant, and "quit when the going gets rough."

He said the Republican platform supports the "principles of sufficient aid to the legitimately needy," with an emphasis on a strong work incentive program, while the opposing party platform recognizes that "every Idaho citizen should have security assumed, adding the Democrats 'recognize welfare as a basic human right.'"

That formula, according to Ravenscroft, "is a blueprint for a total welfare state," and could lead to the "deterioration of the moral fiber of the nation."

Ravenscroft, who was elected five times to the state legislature as a Democrat before switching party affiliation last June at the state Republican convention, also attacked the Democrat party platform for its plank on natural resources.

Saying he and the Republican party supported "multiple land use techniques," Ravenscroft claimed the Democrats in general support a policy that "natural resources should be locked up and looked at but never used."

Burglary plea changed

TWIN FALLS — Melvin Earl Weise, 33, Twin Falls, changed his plea in Fifth District Court Monday on a charge of burglary.

He had been charged with first degree burglary and pleaded innocent but Monday changed his plea before Judge James M. Cunningham to guilty to a reduced charge of second degree burglary. No date was set for sentencing.

He pleaded guilty to entering a pickup truck camper owned by Gerald Denny, 414 1/2 St. E. Michael Wayne Roberts and Carolyn Lorene Massee both pleaded guilty to charges of forgery when they appeared Monday before Judge Cunningham. They were charged with forging a check at Shelby's Market on July 26.

Judge Cunningham granted a pre-sentencing investigation.

Terrorists Taught

The three surviving Olympic games terrorists in German police custody are aged 20, 21, and 22. As far as is known, the five dead Arabs were in the same age range.

Thus none of them was even alive at the time of the partitioning of Palestine and the creation of the state of Israel in 1948. None of them had any personal memories of the mass exodus of Palestinian Arabs into refugee camps, which, a quarter of a century later, still contain upwards of a million people.

The Munich terrorists were made, not born. Carefully nursed on hatred for all of their young lives, they and their fellows in the various groups and factions making up the Palestinian guerrilla movement are the end products of 24 years of refusal by Arab governments in the Middle East to accept the reality of Israel. There is no excuse for the existence of refugee camps after this long a time, some of which have taken on the aspects of permanent cities. The refugees, the bulk of whose support has been and continues to be paid by the United States through the agency of the United Nations, could have been resettled in the first generation, given a modicum of good will on the part of the Arab governments, chiefly Egypt, Syria, Lebanon and Jordan.

The problem need not have arisen in the first place had not these governments, for their own political purposes, encouraged the flight of the refugees and fostered the cult — the deadly myth — of rovanichism.

Now, having reared a generation of terrorists who acknowledge no laws but their own, the Arabs have created a hydra-headed monster that could turn and devour them.

As one observer notes, the Palestinian radicals, consider anyone who is not with them totally to be against them totally. Saudi Arabia's King Faisal is as much an enemy to the guerrillas as Israel's Golda Meir. King Hussein of Jordan, who drove the guerrillas out of his country, is considered a traitor.

The guerrillas, a political force who are both idolized and feared by millions of Arabs, reject out of hand any talk about peaceful solutions in the Middle East or accommodations with Israel.

"Our people are determined," says one teen-aged inhabitant of a refugee camp, "to continue the armed struggle until victory."

As that struggle continues, as new guerrillas are manufactured, trained and armed, and as a strong Israeli frustrates all attempts to attack it directly, the terror escalates and spreads. No nation is immune to bombings, kidnappings, hijackings and extortion attempts.

Yet even after Munich, even after the massacre of innocent travelers at the Tel Aviv airport, certain governments of the world, for their own political purposes, refuse to speak out against terrorism.

Pravda, the official Communist newspaper in Russia, abandoning common sense as well as common decency, claims that "Arab reactionaries and Israeli agents are intentionally pushing the Palestinians to extremism so that the international public will regard them as fanatic terrorists."

At the United Nations, China and the Soviet Union support an Arab move to condemn Israel for its reprisal raids against Lebanon while refusing to condemn the Munich killings.

"We have been walking a very dangerous path by our silence on terrorism," warned U. S. Ambassador George Bush as he cast the second veto by the United States in the history of the U. N., to block the resolution. "By our silence on the disaster in Munich, we are inviting more Munichs."

But what are a few dozen or a few score lives in the great political scheme of things?

Changes Tune

The Swedes, long proud of providing political asylum for American draft dodgers and deserters, have changed their tune and expressed "heartily appreciation" to Spanish authorities for nabbing the three Yugoslav gunmen who hijacked a Swedish airliner and forced it to fly to Madrid.

Spain has indicated it will refuse to grant asylum to the hijackers and instead will try them on charges of air piracy.

Threatening "another Munich," the Yugoslav-Croatian nationalists obtained the release of six of their countrymen who had been held in Swedish jails and got $105 thousand for the release in Malmo of the 83 passengers aboard the plane.

Spanish authorities succeeded in freeing the plane's crew, confiscating the ransom money, and taking the nine Croats into custody without bloodshed.

They are to be commended for prompt and decisive action and the same kind of efficiency in trying the men will win thanks from people everywhere.

America has sought an accord to deny political terrorists and skyjacker sanctuary anywhere in the civilized world. So far, Cuba and the Arab nations, who have been only too willing to harbor American skyjacker and Palestinian terrorists, have shown little interest in civilized behavior.

Governments willing to exploit hijacking and terrorism for their own political ends and hates must be awakened to the fact that they share the guilt. The obvious way to do this is for the United States to denounce them. But the UN isn't united or likely to act, hampered as it is by cross purposes and Security Council vetoes, Russia's favorite device for preventing any action it doesn't want.

The Croats resent Yugoslav rule and want their own national government. This is an ambition Premier Tito put down with an iron fist.

Their aspirations may be legitimate but skyjacking is criminal and deserves no sympathy.

Amtrak First Year

The best news to be recorded in Amtrak's first business year — and the most surprising — is that the number of passengers riding the giant train system was increased, dramatically so in the last two months of the year.

Not unexpectedly, the financial ledgers did not fare so well. Amtrak had operating revenues of $153 million and incurred expenses of $306 million, leaving a deficit of $153 million. No one thought it was going to be easy to make passenger trains pay again, but with expenses running at twice the speed of income Amtrak still faces its biggest hurdle.

During May and June, the last two months of the fiscal year, ridership was up nearly 14 percent. The achievement was even better than the figures indicate because the system was plagued by a number of operating problems, including at one time nearly 40 percent of its passenger cars out of service awaiting repairs.

With the first year out of the way, the rails should ride a little easier the second time around.

Farmers Not Slickered By Grain Deal

WASHINGTON — Contrary to the notion propagated by city slickers since Biblical times, farmers are not unsophisticated dopes and may even be smarter and more suspicious of shill games than their urban cousins. Nature, which is the farmer's principal antagonist, deals harshly with fools.

Accordingly, President Nixon could be — or should be — in trouble with the big farm vote over the Department of Agriculture's rather smelly handling of the deal to sell $750-million worth of wheat to the Soviet Union.

As a result of some secret shenanigans, wheat farmers — especially in the early harvest states of Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas — lost a bundle of dough, while the big grain exporters made a tidy profit. This is not the sort of thing calculated to produce a landslide farm vote for Nixon in November.

What happened was that an Agriculture Department official, Charles W. Pence, telephoned six big exporters but not producers' organizations on Aug. 24 to inform them of an impending favorable change in policy on export subsidies that was not publicly announced until the next day. Subsequently, the commercial dealers sold about 400 million bushels of wheat to Moscow at favorable prices made possible by the fact they had bought the wheat at a bargain.

Unaware of the magnitude of the Soviet deal, the early harvest farmers sold winter wheat at $1.32 a bushel, give or take a few cents. A few weeks later, the Soviet purchases had pushed prices received by the farmers up to $1.65 and $1.70 a bushel. Given such figures, only a moron or a saint could resist the temptation to conclude that the Nixon administration leaked inside information to the exporters as a special, highly profitable favor.

Moreover, the farmers also lost an estimated $68.4-million on so-called "certificate payments." These are payments made by the Federal government to make up the difference between the parity price set by the government and the average price paid to farmers over five marketing months. Because the prices paid in July were far below those in August and September and those projected for October and November, the average was reduced. Consequently, the farmers who sold early got a smaller total of the actual sale price plus certificate price.

It suppose all this sounds too complicated and esoteric for the average city dweller to digest, or care about. But the farmer has no trouble understanding it. When government maneuvers cost a guy dough he doesn't have to be an Einstein to decide he's been had.

Besides, the administration's explanations for those cozy, confidential calls to big grain dealers sound a touch phony.

First, Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz and an aide, Carroll G. Brunthaver, denied the calls were made. Then they amended this to say that if the calls were made they had been unaware of them. The calls, of course, were made — as Pence admitted. But he insisted the companies called could not have concluded contracts before the policy change on export subsidies was announced the next day.

Well, I am not about to swallow the suggestion that Agriculture put through those calls to the grain dealers as a mere neighborly courtesy. Boulder-like, I am seized by the suspicion that somebody saw a chance to butter up folks who might be amenable to suggestions that they contribute to the Nixon campaign.

However, the Nixon administration has handed George McGovern a legitimate issue. It has to do with the citizen's trust that his government will deal evenhandedly with all segments of the electorate, and whatever McGovern's campaign weaknesses he is adept at casting aspersions at the Nixon administration's integrity, especially where it involves associations with the rich and powerful. A farm state boy himself, McGovern gives a special credibility to his perfectly legitimate attacks on the Agriculture's romance with the big grain dealers.

Billy Graham's Dilemma

Billy Graham's dilemma: One can't preach separation of church and state and then practice partisan politics.

Yet it's as difficult for a doctor of theology as for a doctor of medicine to remain silent when he knows what ails us and what's good for us.

Some of us, privileged to know Ruth and Billy Graham for most of our lives, have repeatedly counseled him to remain aloof from partisan politics. For the most part he has.

He felt strongly about the election of 1960 but bit his lip and kept his peace — and got blamed by many for Nixon's eyelash defeat.

In 1968 Billy let it be known in no uncertain terms that he knew, liked and favored Richard Nixon — and got blamed by many for Nixon's victory.

The Grahams have been guests in the White House during the terms of five Presidents. His counsel was sought frequently by L.B.J. The evangelist was a guest at the L.B.J. Texas ranch as recently as this summer.

Graham is politically ambidextrous through consistently philosophically conservative.

Nonetheless, his identification with President Nixon was on such a close and personal basis that when the Cambodia intrusion boomeranged on the White House, it was similarly hurtful to Billy Graham.

For weeks, the mail received by his evangelistic association revealed much disillusionment, resentment, anger.

During this election year Billy Graham has proposed to stand aside.

Invited by Sargent Shriver to deliver the invocation at that convention, he declined.

Invited by the GOP to deliver the invocation at that convention, he asked to be excused.

The "low profile" is intended to disassociate his ministry from partisan politics during this sensitive time, whatever his personal feelings may be.

He did attend the Hollywood gala at the San Clemente White House in late August but even there declined any political commitment beyond joking,

"I'm leaning . . ."

If the polls were not predicting a political landslide — if the election promised to be hairline close again — I don't know what Billy Graham would do.

I expect that he would wrestle with his conscience, argue with Ruth and with his esteemed father-in-law, Dr. Bell — and with the rest of us who consider his ministry to be of transcendent importance — and then on election eve find some discreet way of restating his respect for President Nixon.

And in justification for his position it should be remembered that this mutual personal admiration predates this Administration by many years; indifference would be an unworthy pretense.

Electricity Bind

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Not enough attention has been paid to the United States' extraordinary need for electric power and fuel in the next 10-20-30 years and to the bind we shall be in if we don't make radical changes in handling the problem.

The Federal Power Commission predicts the demand for electric energy will double from 1970 to 1980 and double again in 1990.

Nuclear power, supplied less than 1.5 per cent of the electric power in 1970. It will need to supply 28 per cent in 1980 and half by 1990.

The estimated need for petroleum in the decade just ahead is almost as startling.

Yet applications for new nuclear power plants get bogged down in red tape for years.

The blame is often laid on the environmentalists. They demand, it is argued, standards impossible or too expensive to meet. This argument doesn't face the real issue.

So far as this reporter can determine from talks with government and industry sources, it is not the insistence on standards which is causing the delays.

It is the time which the regulating agencies take in determining whether a plant can be licensed.

It is the frequent, seemingly endless court battles over whether the licensing is correct.

It is the eternal delay in interpreting what the regulations and standards are that have been agreed on. The regulations, standards and ratings are frequently so vague the builders of nuclear plants cannot be certain when they are and are not in compliance, thus leading to frustratingly long negotiations before work can begin and also after construction is under way.

The endless court delays, some men in the Atomic Energy Commission concede privately, come about in part because various interested groups are not brought into the discussions early enough in the game. Some companies insist these environmentalist groups use the court battles as a delaying tactic, not expecting to win.

Nevertheless, few of those this reporter has talked to on one side or another doubt that if there were thorough discussions on proposals and objections early in the procedure (along with more concrete standards and objectives) there would be far less to argue about in court.

AEC officials say there are, as of today, 80 topics in the regulatory process for which nuclear standards are urgently needed.

If that is so, then how can any company plan? It cannot know what standards to meet. It has no way of prepping its plans with the certainty that when they are made they will come close to approval. It means planning in the dark.

Doctor Says

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am a girl, 14, and have water on the knee. All the doctor said was to wear an elastic bandage and no sports, but I can't stop playing in sports. I'm a growing girl. — T.R.

Dear Doctor: My husband is on his knees constantly due to his type of work and has developed a bag below his knee cap. He says if he has it drained or whatever the procedure is, it will leave him with a stiff leg. He won't see a doctor as he says the doctor will only tell him to stay off it. — Mrs. A.A.

Call it "water on the knee," or call it "housemaid's knee," or call it bursitis, it's all part of the same ailment, bursitis of the knee.

There's a sac of fluid just below the knee cap. (Similar protective sacs are in other joints.) Injury or excessive pressure can irritate a sac, bursa, and excess fluid gathers inside the sac as a result.

Miss T. R. obviously doesn't realize how lucky she is — she has a chance to get her problem under control before it does too much damage. It is ridiculous to say that she "can't" give up sports for a time.

Mr. A.'s situation is a good deal rougher because of his work. Long-continued kneeling undoubtedly caused his trouble. Housemaids, working on their knees, used to develop it so often that such bursitis was called housemaid's knee.

Mr. A. most certainly should see a doctor for treatment. True, the doctor without question will tell him to stay off his knees, and if he won't do so, the doctor can't make him. But even so, there is a prospect that the doctor can do something to help him.

I would suggest, first of all, though, that Mr. A. try to find some way to do his work without keeping the pressure on those damaged knees. Perhaps there's a way to shift the pressure; perhaps some sort of bulky kneeling pads will help.

Sometimes injection of hydrocortisone arrests the disease process, although the long-term outlook isn't good unless the basic cause — pressure — can be avoided. Extensive effusion (fluid formation) may require drainage through a hollow needle. This is usually followed by use of a compression bandage — a tight, firm bandage.

Withdrawing fluid does not leave a patient "with a stiff leg," but bursitis, left untreated, can result in the formation of adhesions and a stiff knee.

I urge Mr. A. (or anyone with bursitis) to get treatment and, besides, use all possible ingenuity to keep pressure off the area.

For Miss T. R., I suggest that she stop insisting that she "can't" do as the doctor told her. She should wear the recommended knee support, avoid sports temporarily, and apply heat which will help the healing process. Giving up sports for the time being is a lot better than risking ruin of the knee for life.

Agnew calls McGovern naive

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, taking a two-day campaign trip through Texas, scoffed at Democrat George S. McGovern's statements of foreign policy Monday.

Agnew said McGovern is naive if he thinks he can negotiate from a nice guy standpoint.

"When asked whether he would not expect, if elected, that the Soviet Union would test his toughness, the senator replied to an interviewer, "No, I don't think so. I think they would regard me as a friend and would do everything they could to keep my friendship."

Agnew quoted McGovern as saying, "This response is so naive that it is nothing short of frightening."

Agnew told 1,500 delegates to the National Defense Transportation Association Forum.

He later flew to Fort Worth, where he blasted Hanoi for using American prisoners as instruments of propaganda, disregarding their feelings.

"If they were serious, they would deal with the government of the United States and not with every dissident antiwar activist," he said.

In his San Antonio speech, Agnew criticized McGovern's proposed Defense Department budget cuts.

McGovern raps POW plan

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sen. George S. McGovern today accused the Nixon administration of doing nothing for U.S. prisoners of war "but add to their numbers" and of trying to "manipulate" the wife and mother of two recently freed POW's.

The Democratic presidential candidate, under fire by both Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird this week for his positions on Vietnam bombing and POW's, took the offensive in a speech prepared for a labor breakfast here.

McGovern said "we thank God" three American military men scheduled for release have been freed by the North Vietnamese, but criticized the administration.

"For four years, the Nixon administration has done nothing for the prisoners but add to their numbers," McGovern said. "I say Mr. Nixon should at least exercise some common sense and common decency when they are released through the efforts of others."

The South Dakota senator said Laird's "shrill attacks on me" and on the wife and mother of two of the freed men did not change the fact that the administration had refused the prisoners' "urgent request" for leave with their families and civilian medical care. Speaking of the relatives, McGovern said "those women have tolerated enough over these past years. I say they shouldn't have to tolerate being manipulated by the Pentagon and the White House."

"I believe the President is afraid these prisoners will tell the awful truth about the war—that it is the bombing which keeps them in prison," McGovern said.

McGovern's salvo at the White House and Pentagon came as he mounted a vote-seeking blitz for blue-collar support in California. With former rival Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., campaigning with him, he scheduled another speech to labor supporters in Los Angeles later today, after campaigning for the same backing in the Seattle-Tacoma, Wash. area Monday.

Demo makes campaign swing through Texas

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (UPI)—Sargent Shriver says this year's presidential election is black and white—it's the working people versus the rich.

"This may be the most partisan election since 1932," he said Monday in a campaign swing through south Texas, "not so much Democrats versus Republicans, but the working people versus wealthy people."

over the formation of "Viva McGovern-Shriver" groups in South Texas.

Shriver also endorsed bilingual education and said he and McGovern were dedicated to bilingual and biracial schooling.

Regarding employment of Mexican-Americans, Shriver said—Chicanos have been excluded from jobs by "artificial barriers."

"Whenever we pick people for positions," he said, "we should pick them on merit. But for a long time, Mexican-Americans, black people, women, other minorities have been excluded from jobs by artificial barriers erected against them. So we're interested in eliminating those artificial barriers."

The California swing, which included an appearance at a fund-raising dinner at Fisherman's Wharf after struggling through the third huge street crowd in a week, was to end with an all-night flight back to Washington. There he planned to make a series of "fireside chat" type television programs in which he will try to explain his programs to the millions who follow the campaign in their living rooms.

4 prospective jurors dismissed

FAIRFIELD, Calif. (UPI)—The prosecutor at the mass-murder trial of Juan V. Corona removed four prospective jurors by peremptory challenges Monday, two of them blacks.

Defense attorney Richard E. Hawk, who has said minority representation on the panel is imperative, twice agreed to accept the tentative jury.

Corona, 38, a Mexican-American immigrant charged with slaying 25 migrant farm workers and burying their bodies along the Feather River in the spring of 1971, took notes and showed keen interest in the proceedings.

Hawk conferred with the defendant in a holding cell once over the prospective panel's makeup.

Jury selection resumes today with the prosecution still retaining nine challenges by which a juror can be dismissed without a cause. The defense has seven challenges left.

Deadline extension needed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Edward N. Cole, president of General Motors, says the automobile industry will not be able to meet 1975 federal antipollution requirements without cooperation from the federal government and the oil industry.

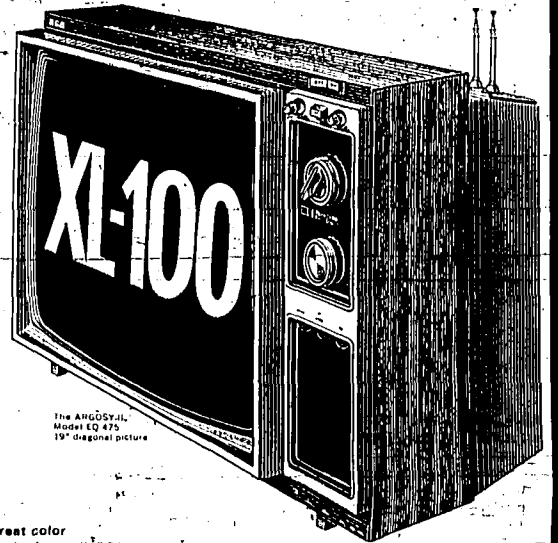

Cole told the National Defense Transportation Association convention Monday there must be a reduction of lead in fuel and an extension of the federal 1975 deadline.

"We have the technical solution to the problem, but we do not have adequate time to do an effective job before the 1975 vehicles are placed on the market," Cole said.

"We need 18 months to do the testing alone, but we have been given only until Aug. 15, 1974, when the first GM cars for 1975 are scheduled for distribution."

Boise banquet speaker slated

BOISE — A man for all arts, Vincent Price has few requirements. All he asked for his appearance as principal speaker at the Oct. 5 banquet, sponsored by the Idaho State Commission on Arts and Humanities at Hotel Boise, was "a podium with a good light, a microphone and a pitcher of water and a glass."

The Biennial Governor's Arts Conference will be at the Boise State College Oct. 5-6 with the Governor's Awards Luncheon to be held in the College Union Ballroom at Noon on Oct. 5, followed by the Vincent Price Banquet that evening at 7 p.m. The conference brings to Idaho one of those rare individuals who seems to have stepped from the world of the Renaissance where many great talents were vested in the same person. Born in St. Louis, Price's thrust was to be a teacher and collector of art. He bought a Rembrandt etching when he was 12 years old.

Later, he attended the Country Day School at St. Louis, majored in art at Yale and continued his studies at London University while working on a masters degree.

In London he developed another great interest, the theatre, where he had his first small role. From then on, the lure of grease paint took precedence over oil paint and he plunged in full tilt to secure a part in the London production of Victoria Regina. When he arrived in New York with a cast selected by Producer Gilbert Miller, he was chosen to play the Prince Consort opposite Helen Hayes.

Since then he has been a leading film, television and stage star. It was as a guest on the late Edward R. Murrow's "Person to Person" program that a nationwide audience became aware of his extensive art collection at his home in Beverly Hills.

Price has attained renown as a major art collector and critic. He is a patron of several contemporary American artists and does a weekly column in the Sunday Chicago Tribune. He has received an honorary doctor's degree from the California College of Arts and Crafts and an L.H.D. from Ohio Wesleyan University. He is on the Board of the Archives of American Art, the National Committee of Whitney Museum of American Art, a member of the Royal Academy of Arts in England and the Art Council of the University of California.

He and his wife, Mary, have established a reputation as gourmet cooks, and their "Treasury of Great Recipes," published in 1965, was re-issued in 1968. He is also the author of "I Like What I Know," "The Book of Joe," and others.

Price's subject at his Boise appearance is "Three American Voices": Walt Whitman, "Selections from 'Leaves of Grass,'" James A. McNeill Whistler, "Excerpts from 'The Gentle Art of Making Enemies,'" and Tennessee Williams, "The Last of My Solid Gold Watches," a rich and varied dramatic entertainment from the works of three great American artists, a poet, a painter and a playwright, whose unique artistic visions have electrified the world.

Mrs. Lloyd Walker, Twin Falls, serves on the executive committee of the Idaho States Commission on Arts and Humanities.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Here is another Jammersten hand. South is in four spades and West has doubled the one spade opening bid and has opened a trump. South looks over dummy carefully. It looks as if West will hold all missing high cards and South is faced with the prospect of losing two hearts, a diamond and a club. What feat of magic can make one of these losers disappear? Actually, no magic is necessary. Just a little bit of luck. South wins the trump and leads a low diamond toward dummy. West's best play is to hop up with his king. He does just that and leads a second trump.

South wins this in his own hand also and plays a low club. If West clatters up with the ace, South's worries are over. But West plays low. Dummy's king wins the trick and South is ready with the magic. He plays out the rest of the diamonds, discarding one of dummy's clubs on the last one. Then he plays his queen of clubs. West is on lead again and no matter what he does, one of South's heart losers has vanished. What was the bit of luck we mentioned earlier? If diamonds had broken badly South wouldn't have been able to discard that club from dummy and would have had to be set.

'BCG misleading,' researcher says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A cancer researcher at the University of California Medical Center has accused researchers at the Oak Ridge National Laboratory in Tennessee of raising "false hopes" among cancer victims.

Dr. Martin Apple said Oak Ridge reports of a 100 per cent cancer cure rate in animals by a bacterial agent called BCG "are very misleading" and based "on insufficient testing under special circumstances."

Apple is a researcher at the Cancer Research Institute and a recognized authority on the use of drugs to treat cancer.

He said the drug BCG is "nothing new" and has been used in France for years on leukemia patients, "but its effectiveness is yet to be proven." "Don't get me wrong," Apple said, "there is no doubt this work has merit. But the question of how much merit is totally unanswered."

He said the Oak Ridge announcement "was made the wrong way. It will give hope to people, and relatives of people, suffering from incurable cancer. It hasn't been proven to work on a single person."

Deadly ritual

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — A Charleston woman died at a hospital here Sunday eight days after she was bitten by a rattlesnake during a snake-handling ritual at a church in neighboring Putnam County.

The victim, Mrs. Beulah Vay Bucklen, 59, had been bitten twice by the snake at the Jesus Pentecostal Church in Fraziers Bottom.

Her husband, Roscoe Bucklen, said it was about 14 hours after the service before he could convince his wife to seek hospitalization.

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Mine is a rather unusual problem, but I do hope you will answer it because I don't know where else to turn. Is there some place where a person can buy only ONE shoe instead of a pair? Also, is there a place where one can turn in the unused shoe he has for one foot?

For a person who is minus one leg this is a real problem. He ends up with many extra shoes for the one foot he doesn't have.

For all the people you will help if you answer this, I say, "Thank you."

ODD PROBLEM

Amputee's dilemma

DEAR ODD: There was such a "shoe exchange" in Santa Monica, Cal., but I am informed that they are no longer in business. I'll publish your letter, and if there is such a place elsewhere, I promise you, we'll locate it. Readers?

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are very friendly with another couple about our age. (Mid-twenties.) One evening the wife went into our bathroom and when she came out I happened to notice that the bottle of capsules in my medicine cabinet had been moved to another place. I counted them, and four capsules were missing. My doctor had prescribed these capsules which are quite powerful, and not obtainable without a prescription.

I was concerned, so I got my husband to take her husband for a walk and then I confronted her with the situation. She swore up and down she hadn't taken any of the capsules, but I know she did. She was pregnant at the time. The next time she came over I made sure the capsules were hidden, but the following time she dropped in unexpectedly and I wasn't able to hide them. Sure enough, she took three more because I always keep track of how many there are in the bottle.

What should I do? Tell her husband about it? This friend has had a drug problem and I am concerned for her.

ADVICE NEEDED

DEAR ABBY: Tell her husband, and let him tell her doctor. This is no time for silence. Your friend's health is your business.

DEAR ABBY: I know this is the wrong time of the year to discuss football widows, whose husbands are rooted in front of the television, but if you print this, maybe they will remember my letter this fall and be a little more thankful.

I have been married only four months. My husband is a forest fighter with the U. S. Forest Service and tonight is the third fire this week, and today was supposed to be his day off, too.

I used to like to sit and watch storms but now I loathe them because I know the lightning will cause fires.

We live 28 miles from the nearest town of any size and our nearest friends are 15 miles away. I have nothing to keep me company in the evenings, and half the night I sit and chew my nails and get scared to death listening to the "night noises."

Those football widows are lucky to have their husbands home where they can see them and know they are safe!

"A FOREST SERVICE WIDOW IN OREGON"

DEAR WIDOW: No television? No radio? No books? No sewing? Sitting around, chewing your nails and listening to the "night noises" while you feel sorry for yourself will only make the night seem longer and lonelier. Find something to occupy your mind while your husband is doing his thing. At least you know where he is and what he's doing.

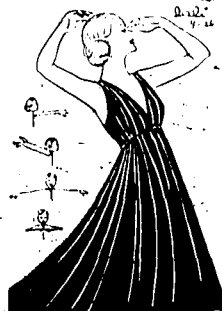

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L. A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

CALL TO ARMS

By Mary Sue Miller

The long, sleeveless dress returns to the evening scene. And it is truly a romantic fashion if your arms are up to baring. The upper arm is the common trouble spot. The young arm often appears too fully packed and hence, babyfied. Many mature arms are prone to quivery, oldish sag.

It follows that a girl with the problem should eat a little less and get a lot more exercise involving arm action (like pingpong, for instance). A woman must maintain normal weight, as fluctuations cause flab, to tighten and tone the muscles, a spot routine is indicated.

There's an assist for all in improved skin care. Simply massage—scrub with a well-lathered loofah sponge or body brush during daily baths. At least once daily, apply an emollient body or hand lotion to the entire arm. Massage in firmly from wrist to shoulder with the cupped palm of a hand.

For lax muscles, perform this routine 20 times, night and morning: Stand erect with arms extended in front of body at shoulder level, and backs of hands touching. Briskly swing arms up and back as far as possible, let arms fall to shoulder level at either side, palms leading, bend elbows so that thumbs touch chest and tense upper arm muscles for 10 counts. By reversing reactions return to starting position and continue.

SPOT REDUCING EXERCISES

Spot reduction—key to a proportioned figure. Exercise is the only way to trim those stubborn bulges... to lose inches exactly where you wish. My new leader, SPOT REDUCING EXERCISES, gives easy routines—40 in all—for slimming the upper back, arms, midriff, hips, legs, ankles. Plus ideal measurements—other figure-trimming tips. # Idaho pilot plan gets top backing

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, giving a progress report Monday on the federal Rocky Mountain States' Educational Satellite program, called the project "the real meat of our future."

Sparking a telecommunications council meeting during the first day of the federal's eighth annual conference here, Andrus, chairman of the federation, said the pilot project will be of immeasurable help to communications facilities throughout the intermountain west.

Besides its primary function as an educational aid to both children and adults, the governor said the satellite, which will be launched in April, 1974, and station itself some 20,000 miles above the Rocky Mountains, will help law enforcement officials gather information about possible suspects within two or three minutes' time.

"An officer will be able to stop a motorist and get information about both the driver and the car, no matter where he's from within a few short minutes," he explained.

Earlier, Dr. William Rapp of Denver told council members that contracts with the Office of Education had been consummated and that the satellite's specifications were ready for "exact planning."

In addition to the six member states, Rapp said, the facility will serve Arizona and Nevada. Its signals will transmit the color, and will be capable of sending four separate sound tracks, making it possible to offer lessons in Spanish and Navajo as well as English, he added.

Delegates from both government and private business sectors of member states spent the complete first day in council and committee meetings.

Scientist scores crowding

BOISE (UPI) — A noted scientist said today the crowding of 104 million Americans into less than 10 per cent of the nation's land area is nurturing "vicious problems" that will become "completely insoluble."

But Dr. Peter C. Goldmark said society has the knowledge to move 100 million people from the great urban centers to underpopulated rural areas, creating "an informed and well-cared-for people in a living and eternal testimonial to the validity of the American dream."

He said the secret is to make use of advanced communications techniques.

Goldmark is an inventor known for creating the long-playing phonograph record, the first practical color television system and the video cassette. He now is president of Goldmark Communications Corp., and he outlined his dream of a "new rural society" to the Federation of Rocky Mountain States.

Goldmark said the United States cannot continue the process of crowding the bulk of its population into urban areas.

"If we allow high-density living to continue unchecked, the problems of crime, narcotics, illiteracy, poverty and pollution will become completely insoluble," he said. "At the same time, solutions to controllable traffic, adequate housing and enjoyable living for millions will become insoluble."

Gem aide suggests guidelines

BOISE (UPI) — The assistant secretary of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare told a banquet gathering Monday night that efforts to introduce labor-saving technology in health and education have met with too much resistance.

Addressing the eighth annual conference of the Federation of Rocky Mountain States here, Dr. Laurence E. Lynn Jr. warned delegates not to fall prey to temptations of "feeling threatened by technological developments."

"I can't blame those who resist the further depersonalizing of our social institutions," he said.

"However, to the extent that such resistance represents legitimate fears over deterioration in the quality of life and individual self-esteem, technologists must be sympathetic and flexible in designing their systems."

Lynn suggested a series of guidelines for "insuring potential" without undermining the fabric of a human-oriented society.

First, he said, the "problem solving methodology" applied to the physical sciences can be applied to educational and health problems.

Second, through the use of communications technology — radio and television in particular — day-to-day services can be provided at a minimum cost. For example, he said, day care centers can be run with the help of mass media programming instead of the high cost required by hiring college graduate childhood specialists.

Third, Lynn explained, technology will enable us to assemble more "effective combinations" of resources to cope with social problems than ever before.

"The specialized skills of large numbers of individuals who cannot all be available in each of the locations where a service is needed, can, through communication technology, be assembled simultaneously at multiple locations."

Finally, Lynn said, communication technology makes it possible to eliminate "some of the inequalities of opportunity" that result from geographic isolation and migration, said the possible combinations of technology and human resources are limitless, and urged the federation to keep everyone from being "communication-less," he added.

Concluding his address, Lynn education programs. "Unlike the conquest of space, the depopulation of the environment and the delivery of health, education and social services via telecommunication require no new scientific breakthrough," he said.

Treasurer raps 'political games'

HOMEDALE (UPI) — Idaho's state treasurer says the last legislature's record of "playing political games" rather than taking care of state business compounds problems facing candidates elected in November.

Marjorie Ruth Moon, speaking to a Homedale political gathering, said Gov. Cecil D. Andrus "has been stymied every way he turned in the past by legislators who put political games above the interests of the state."

Citing one example of what she termed Republicans in the legislature "not paying attention to the actual business of state government," she told of a "kangaroo court-type hearing" on computer bidding practices last week.

The hearing was held by the Legislative Budget-Fiscal Committee.

"It seemed to me that the main purpose was to give the Republican-controlled committee and its friends an opportunity to try to embarrass the Democratic administration," she said.

Candidates hit special issues

By United Press International
Idaho candidates for federal offices Monday hit as campaign issues taxes, potato boycotts and damming of the middle Snake River.

At home in Sunny Slope, Republican First District congressional hopeful Steve Symms said "too high taxes are killing the initiative of the small businessman and wage earner."

Speaking to area workingmen, Symms said inflation caused by "their irresponsible spending of the federal bureaucracy is causing a steady rise in the cost of living, eroding away the life savings of senior citizens."

He lashed out at the Democratic presidential ticket and at his opponent, Ed Williams. "According to the McGovern-Williams ticket, the solution to all this is more government programs. Americans are not going to be fooled any longer."

Williams, in Boise Monday, said there was no need for more damming of the middle Snake or the full length of the Salmon River.

"Dams are necessary in Idaho to the point of supplying Idaho's needs, but when we begin to sell our waterpower to out-of-state interests, we must take a second look," the Democratic First District congressional candidate said.

Panel meet to consider Watergate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Chairman Wright Patman of the House Banking Committee said Monday the panel would meet Oct. 3 to consider a full-scale investigation of the "Watergate caper" and whether to subpoena top Republican officials.

If the committee agrees to a full investigation, Patman promised a report on the break-in at the Democratic headquarters and its financial offshoots before the Nov. 7 election.

Patman said in his announcement of the committee meeting that GOP national chairman Robert Dole, who criticized Patman on a weekend television interview, was obviously frightened to have the facts put before the public.

"Sen. Dole's comments on the Issues and Answers program Sunday are those of a scared man — a campaign official desperately frightened by the prospects of the facts of this case being revealed to the American public," Patman said.

Dole charged in the interview that Patman was one of the most partisan Democrats in the House, and indicated any investigation by his committee could not be fair.

Patman did not say which GOP officials he would like to subpoena, but earlier he mentioned Maurice Stans, director of the Finance Committee of the Committee to Re-Elect the President, and John N. Mitchell, former attorney general and former head of the re-election committee.

The subpoena would also be for "certain books and records," Patman said, presumably referring to the campaign records of the Nixon re-election committee which Stans earlier refused to make available to committee staff investigators.

The committee staff, in a report to committee members earlier, was highly critical of Stans in particular, accusing him of changing his story about whether he knew of the transfer of $100,000 to GOP campaign funds through Mexico.

The report said that contribution might have violated the law if any of the funds came from foreign nationals. Republicans leaders said the funds were funneled through Mexico to prevent identification of the American donors, many of whom apparently were Democrats.

He indicated the committee would also go into the details of the incident June 17, when five men were caught inside Democratic National Headquarters at the Watergate office building with electronic eavesdropping devices.

Gasoline tanks explode in Chattanooga yard

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UPI) — A cluster of huge gasoline tanks in a storage yard burst into flames today, injuring at least eight persons. Firefighters said they feared another tank may still explode. Four of the five tanks in the cluster, containing several millions of gallons of gasoline, were full at the time of the initial blast in which three of them exploded. Firemen said they feared the fourth full tank may also explode.

Fire Chief Harry Jett said if that happens, workers would try to move a string of Southern Railroad cars parked 50 yards away containing liquid latex. However, Jett said there appeared to be no immediate danger the railroad cars would also ignite.

The fire is believed to have started from a leak in a tank containing about 1.6 million gallons of high-test gasoline at the Shell storage yard. It forced the evacuation of persons in the area and set off explosions which could be heard for miles away.

The Federal Aviation Administration suspended all aircraft from flying below 3,000 feet within five miles of the area because of the flames.

"I thought it was a sonic boom at first, but suddenly the sky lit up and I was scared to death," said Carlisle Walker, who operates a service station about a mile and a half from the scene.

A leak in one of the storage tanks was discovered early today, and a crew was trying to fix it when the gasoline ignited.

A firetruck that was standing by was engulfed in flames along with an automobile.

Police placed heavy patrols in the evacuated residential area to prevent looting as emergency shelters for those evacuated were set up in nearby schools and churches.

A Red Cross spokesman said 300 persons were sheltered at Hillcrest High School at midday.

The fire was confined to the east side of Jersey Pike where about a dozen of the tanks are located.

Ag department cuts subsidy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department without warning has eliminated its wheat export subsidy driving export prices 50 per cent higher than those charged on massive wheat sales to Russia this summer.

An announcement after commodities exchanges closed Friday said the export subsidy would be dropped to zero on Monday. The subsidy had been slipping in stages since the Soviet sales, sagging to 19 cents Thursday and 14 cents before 3:30 p.m. Friday.

The Soviet purchases of 400 million bushels of wheat had created a domestic shortage, according to millers and bakers who asked the Price Commission last month for permission to increase bread prices as a result.

Elimination of the subsidy, which had allowed exporters to buy wheat at high domestic prices and sell it abroad at lower rates, automatically raised the export price by 14 cents. In addition, officials said domestic prices rose another 4 cents Friday.

An agriculture spokesman said the export payment was dropped because, "in our judgment, the subsidy is not needed to increase sales at this point." The combination of the domestic price hike and the subsidy elimination boosted the export price of hard red winter wheat at Gulf ports Friday by 18 cents to $2.44 a bushel from Thursday's price of about $2.26.

The new price, which is the same for export as in domestic markets, was about 50 per cent above the $1.63 which the Agriculture Department maintained with its subsidies during the period of heavy Russian purchases from nearly July until late August.

When unexpectedly large Soviet orders sent U.S. domestic wheat prices soaring earlier this summer, the Agriculture Department decided to hold export prices at the $1.63 level which had been in effect for about two years.

Before news of the Russian sales spread, domestic and export prices had been close together and the subsidy bridging the gap was only about 2 cents per bushel. In order to avoid pulling export prices up as domestic markets boomed in July and August, export subsidies were steadily increased until they reached a peak of 47 cents a bushel at the end of August.

20,000 expected at demonstration

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Plans for an antiwar demonstration outside a hotel where President Nixon is scheduled to speak Wednesday night drew the attention of police Monday and sparked new bickering between Republican and Democratic camps.

The demonstration is sponsored by the "Century Plaza Reception Committee" which predicted a turnout of more than 20,000 persons.

Police were skeptical about that figure and said they had estimates as low as 1,000.

Nixon is scheduled to talk at a $1,000-a-plate fund-raising dinner at the Century Plaza Hotel.

A Republican party spokesman asserted the sponsors have been permitted to use telephones at headquarters of Sen. George McGovern for president.

A McGovern spokesman said "a handful" of demonstrators had made calls but the McGovern people were not active in organizing the demonstration.

"We certainly hope there is no violence," said Tom Sullivan, the spokesman.

Cmdr. Peter F. Hagan Jr., police department press liaison officer, said:

"We will have sufficient policemen present to handle any eventuality in a professional manner. We will use our people as needed to protect the President and the dinner guests as well as other guests of the hotel."

Alan Levine, development director of the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said the ACLU will participate in the demonstration "mainly to avert what happened last time," and will provide attorneys to act as observers.

He referred to a visit to the Century Plaza by President Lyndon Johnson in 1967 when police clashed with antiwar demonstrators.

Southern Cal retains top spot in grid poll

NEW YORK (UPI)—One-sided victories did not hold much water for the United Press International Board of Coaches Monday as only Michigan made a significant leap in the college football ratings after a weekend of skyrocketing scores.

The Wolverines, who topped UCLA from the unbeaten ranks 26-9, vaulted from 12th place up to eighth as Southern California retained the No. 1 spot with 332 points, including 20 first place votes.

Oklahoma, which rolled over Oregon 48-3, was unable to gain ground on the Trojan and in fact got one less first-place vote than last week. The Sooners wound up with 32 No. 1 nods and 319 points. Colorado remained third.

Nebraska, which was expected to move up considerably after dealing Army (its worst 17-7) victory in history, advanced just one notch from eighth to seventh and Tennessee, a 45-6 victor over Wake Forest, remained No. 4 but dropped off in points, 202-193.

Another team which saw its offensive fireworks show go for naught was Arizona State, which pounded Kansas State 50-14 but dropped out of the top 10 into No. 11. Notre Dame replaced the Sun Devils at No. 10 after opening its season by blanking Northwestern 37-0. Washington and Florida State made the biggest advances in the second 10. The Huskies went from 17th to 12th after outlasting Purdue 22-21, while the Seminoles got closer to their goal of top 10 ranking by jumping to 13th after putting away Virginia Tech 27-15.

Newcomers to the ratings this week were Air Force, West Virginia and Mississippi. Air Force, with a pair of one-sided wins over Wyoming and Pittsburgh, came in at the No. 17. West Virginia, looking more and more like the class of the east with three quick victories to its credit, deadlocked with the Falcons.

Mississippi, which should have smooth sailing right on through till November, was 20th.

Bob Devaney seeks changes in rule

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Nebraska coach Bob Devaney said Monday he is going to push for a change in a player limitation rule in college football.

Devaney said the rule, which was imposed for the first time this year by the Big Eight conference and limits the non-conference traveling squad to 50 players.

"This is a very, very silly rule," Devaney said. "And in my position as athletic director for the University of Nebraska, I'm going to see about having something done about it by next year."

This season is the last for Devaney as head coach. Next year, he will take over on a full-time basis the athletic directorship he now holds in conjunction with his coaching duties.

In past years and with the win record to allow it, Devaney has prided himself on not running up the score.

Part of his coaching philosophy has been to win the game and then turn it over to the reserves and let the next year's first string hopefuls get some game experience.

With the player limitation rule in effect, however, Devaney said there is little a coach can do to keep down the score against some opponents "without making the game a farce."

"About the only thing you can do is tell your reserves to play the game," he said.

He also said the Army team was not as bad as the score indicated. "They just had so many things go wrong all at the same time that things went from bad to worse for them."

"At no time during the game, once the victory was secure, were attempts made to keep the numbers moving upwards deliberately," he said.

The reserve quarterbacks were told not to pass, the coach said. But, he added he didn't think "that was really fair" for the reserves to operate under such a directive.

Sixkiller is top player

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Sonny Sixkiller, engineer of Washington's 22-21 victory over Purdue, Monday was named Pacific 8 Conference Player of the Week.

Sixkiller, who completed 17 of 30 passes for 222 yards and one touchdown, won out over Dave Brown, Southern California center—the first offensive lineman nominated for the award this year—and Washington State quarterback Ty Paine.

Sixkiller got off slowly against Purdue but in the second half he hit on 13 of 20 throws and 190 yards. In the fourth quarter alone he was eight for 10 and during the 77-yard drive which resulted in the winning field goal for the Huskies, he was perfect, completing all four passes attempted.

Purdue coach Bob DeMoss said Sixkiller the highest compliment of all.

"We put good pressure on him," said DeMoss. "We had guys with hands in his face and he still threw the ball. I'm glad we don't have to face him again."

Gabriel suffers injury

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Roman Gabriel, star quarterback of the Los Angeles Rams, is suffering from tendinitis of the right elbow and team physicians said they did not know how long he would be hampered by the trouble.

The veteran passer saw only limited action Sunday in the 13-13 tie with the Chicago Bears when he reported his passing arm became numb while warming up for the game.

"I first treated Roman for this problem back in 1968," Dr. Jules Kassin reported. "This has been a recurring thing, but it always has responded well to treatment until this time."

Dr. Kassin said Gabriel was receiving cortisone shots and physical therapy but added, "we simply cannot tell how long Roman will be out."

Rams assistant general manager Jack Teele said the ailment had not reached the point where the team was looking for another quarterback and the Rams felt Gabriel's backup man, Pete Beathard, was more than adequate

Phils general manager plans to fire field boss — himself

NEW YORK (UPI)—In eight more days now, the general manager of the Philadelphia Phillies breaks the news to his field manager.

"I'm gonna let myself go," says Paul Owens, laughing about it a little.

The reason Paul Owens laughs is because he's both general manager and field manager of the Phillies right now, and as the former he's about to fire himself as the latter.

The last time anybody remembers anything like this happening was nearly 50 years ago when Casey Stengel, president of the Worcester ball club, canned Casey Stengel, the Worcester manager.

"Remember it like it was the other day," says Casey. "Hadda go through the commissioner, Judge Landis."

But let's get back to Paul Owens. He has led practically two lives since succeeding Frank Lucchesi as manager and taking on both jobs last July 10.

From a physical standpoint, he has dropped nearly 10 pounds off a frame that was lean to begin with, and it hasn't been too easy mentally either trying to keep track of 15 things at the same time.

"People kid me about losing my marbles," Owens says, still smiling. "I tell them if they ever see me talking to myself in the hotel lobby not to pay any attention, really, because it's only the general manager giving the manager hell."

When the 48-year-old Owens acceded to the wishes of club owner Bob Carpenter and took over for Lucchesi, now on special assignment for the club, the Phillies had lost 40 of their last 50 games and seemed headed straight for the bottom of the Western Carolinas League.

They still will finish last in the National League East next week but now, Owens feels, at least they do have some hope of moving up next year.

"What I wanted most was for this club to get rid of its losing attitude," says Owens, under whom the Phils have won 29 and lost 42. That comes out to a 40 percent win rate, and the Phils were crawling along at .342 when Owens became the manager.

"I wanted us to play .500 ball," he says. "That may not sound like much, but I felt if we could play .500, we could get our self respect back. To me, that was important and I tried to convey that to the players. We were almost doomed to finish last when I took over and I told the players, let's not kid ourselves, we can't change the nature of our standing, but in the 80 games left, let's at least try to play .500. It wasn't so much a case of winning 40 and losing 40, I said to them, as a case of executing better—or at least well enough to play .500 ball."

Owens goes back to being solely general manager next week but there won't be any vacation for him. He realizes the Phillies will have to make trades this winter—one rumor already has it they're going to deal their super southpaw Steve Carlton to Pittsburgh for Dock Ellis, Rennie Stennett and Milt May—and because of what he has been doing these past three months, no general manager will bring a fresher first-hand knowledge of the players to the trading table than Owens.

AL race still up for grabs

by United Press International
As the days dwindle down to a precious few about the only certainty regarding the American League East Division race is that it will go down to the first few days of October.

With four teams separated by only three games and only 10 days remaining to the regular season, the possibilities are almost too numerous to list. Boston currently heads the standings by a mere game over Detroit. Baltimore is 21-2 games off the pace with the New York Yankees only another half game back. All teams were off Monday.

"I think it'll go right down to the last game in Detroit and I'm not counting anybody out at this point," said Red Sox manager Eddie Kasko. "I'll be optimistic when our lead is more games than we have left to play."

The fact that the four contenders have an unequal amount of games remaining because of the players strike in early April makes this race much more difficult to figure out than previous pennant chases. The theory is that this year it's the "all-important win column" that counts rather than the "all-important loss column" since the team with more games has a chance to win them. With Boston playing only .548 ball, however, the chance also exists that the same team with the extra games also has a chance to lose them.

Detroit is a perfect example of the team with the extra games not necessarily having an advantage. Detroit has a record of 80-68 compared to Boston's mark of 80-66. Detroit, with two extra games thus far, has lost both of them and finds itself one game behind the Red Sox. Boston has nine games remaining compared to eight for Detroit. The two teams finish up, against each other with a three game series at Detroit, Oct. 2, 3 and 4.

New York plays the same amount of games as Boston (155) and with seven games remaining, finds itself two games behind the Red Sox in the win column and four behind in the loss column. The Yankees can help themselves with two games against Detroit but their five remaining contests are with Cleveland and Milwaukee.

so New York definitely needs help from the other contenders.

Oakland, with nine games remaining, needs only five more victories to close out the AL's West Division chase.

Sale of hunting, fishing licenses support programs for Idaho wildlife

By STU MURRELL
Regional Conservation
Educator

Idaho sportsmen are interested in how their fishing and hunting license money is spent. The entire budget of the Fish and Game Department is allocated from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses with the exception of federal aid monies received from taxes on sporting arms, ammunition, and fishing equipment which contribute about 25 percent of the budget. Some additional funds are received from the federal government for salmon and steelhead management and development. There are no monies appropriated from the general tax fund, so the person who is benefiting directly from the program (the hunter and fisherman) is the one paying for it.

All monies deposited in the fish and game fund from the sale of licenses are used for the administration of fish and game except about 1 percent which goes to the state general fund for the payment of state office services to the department. Also about $60,000 in fines each year from fish and game violations remains in the counties.

The department has a programmed budget of $7,516,775 for fiscal year 1972-73. How is this money spent? There are seven divisions within the department that use these funds. The first one we will discuss is the fisheries division since it has the most money ($1,959,666) appropriated for its functions.

About 40 percent of the fisheries budget goes for personnel. The next breakdown is called "other expense" which amounts to about 42 percent and involves costs for special treatment for rough fish control on waters of the state, operation of offices, research projects on various species, fish hatchery operations, etc., involving the day to day operations of the fisheries program. Capital outlay is another category and involves purchase of the trucks, boats, nets, fish food, etc., needed in management of the fishery resource.

The game division is next with a budget of $1,740,700 and personnel costs account for just over 40 percent. The workers in this division are responsible for game management and research throughout the state. The money is used for big game census, trapping and tagging, special research studies, raising and releasing of game birds from the Jerome game farm, proper management and administration of the lands owned by the department, and numerous day to day operations such as operating checking stations.

Engineering division is the next big spender with $1,550,482 of which $1,135,891 goes into capital outlay for building various projects around the state such as a new fishing reservoir, roads for access sites, boat ramps, fishing reservoirs, new office buildings, sewage treatment ponds for some of our older fish hatcheries (a current project and numerous other buildings, etc., needed at our installations. So you can see a good chunk of the yearly budget goes into construction of installations for the public's benefit.

Enforcement is fourth in their budget size with $1,278,764 of which $815,419 goes for personnel. There are 69 district conservation officers and eight regional conservation officers that operate in the state. Most of their time goes to conservation law enforcement, but they assist in numerous projects on fish and game management, administering the eight regional offices and various other duties.

The administration division has $661,886 for fiscal year 1973, less than 9 percent of the total budget. They are primarily a service division involved in the sale of licenses through over 600 vendors in the state, preparation of budgets, doing all the accounting within the department, purchase of various items of equipment, handling of many details of controlled hunts, and several other items such as insurance programs and direct mail to all personnel.

Information and education is sixth with $307,549, about 4 percent of the budget. Again this is a service division which answers the numerous inquiries on hunting and fishing by the public; administers the gun safety program which reaches about 16,000 students a year in Idaho; works closely with school administrators on environmental education, and works with all the news media throughout the state to provide current information on fish and game department operations. This division also has charge of printing all the information handouts, regulations, the department magazine, the Idaho Wildlife Review maps, and numerous other booklets for use by the public.

A new planning division was established this year with a budget of $55,122 which was set up to coordinate and develop a long range fish and game management plan for the state. This would be broken down by species management plans. For example, the plan will show what population levels of elk we hope to maintain in the various parts of the state and how we hope to accomplish this. This should provide a directed approach to wildlife management goals for the coming years.

There is one category not mentioned under any division which is of great importance to the sportsman and recreationist. This is the acquisition of land needed for sportsmen's access and lands and waters particularly suitable for wildlife development. We have budgeted $125,000 plus $503,310 (holdover from last year) for this year. One example is the purchase of the 950 acre Niagara Springs Ranch in Hagerman Valley for $375,000. This project was approved recently by the State Land Board, and will provide a great hunting, fishing, and recreation area.

Boxer is recovering

MELBOURNE, Australia (UPI)—South African welterweight Joey Archer was reported to be in satisfactory condition Tuesday after being admitted to hospital Monday night when he was knocked out by Australian Michael Karponey in a televised boxing match at Festival Hall.

Hospital authorities said Archer will remain in hospital until at least Wednesday.

Archer was knocked unconscious by Karponey in the 10th and final round. He dropped to the canvas and was carried from the ring on a stretcher and taken to hospital by ambulance.

Doctors Monday night described Archer's condition as serious but today they said he was slowly recovering.

Max Pescud, Karponey's trainer said he and Karponey were very upset about the ending of the fight.

"It was a bad luck ending to a really good fight and we hope Joey will soon be all right," Pescud said.

"Michael is very upset and worried about Archer and will visit him in hospital as soon as the doctors will let him." Pescud said he did not think it was Karponey's head punches that caused Archer to collapse.

Late field goal lets Chiefs defeat Saints

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—John Stenerud kicked a 22-yard field goal with 1:21 left in the game Monday night to give the Kansas City Chiefs a 20-17 victory over a New Orleans Saints team that was a two touchdown underdog before the nationally televised contest began.

Angels topple Rangers

ARLINGTON, Tex. (UPI)—Nolan Ryan became the sixth man in American League history to post 300 strikeouts in a season and then scored the winning run Monday night as the California Angels beat the Texas Rangers 2-1 Monday night.

Ryan, who picked up his 18th win against 15 defeats, pushed his season strikeout total to 302 by finishing the game with 12 strikeouts and took over the major league strikeout lead from Philadelphia's Steve Carlton (292).

Loser Dick Bosman (7-10) carded nine strikeouts, his best total of the year.

Texas, which didn't get a hit off Ryan until Larry Bittner beat out an infield single in the fourth, scored in the second inning after Ford was safe at first on third baseman Ken McMullen's throwing error. Ford stole second, went to third on Tom Grieve's sacrifice bunt and scored on Dalton Jones' sacrifice fly to center field.

California knotted the game in the seventh when Mickey Rivers opened with a single to right field and scored from first as Vada Pinson followed with a double to center.

In the eighth, Ryan double advanced to third on a ground out and scored the winning run when Rangers first baseman Bittner let a ground ball go through his legs.

Jones moves on money list

NEW YORK (UPI)—Grier Jones' victory in last weekend's Robinson Hall Golf Classic moved him from 12th place to fifth in the latest list of pro golf's top money winners for 1972, according to figures released Monday by the PGA Tour's Players Division.

Jones' triumph was worth $20,000 and topped his earnings for the year to $122,825. It was his second tour victory this season, his first coming in the Hawaiian Open in February.

Jack Nicklaus, who skipped the Robinson Classic, remained atop the list with $280,482 followed by Lee Trevino with $199,168 and George Archer with $140,102.

Jerry Heard is fourth ($132,281) followed by Jones, Gary Player ($120,719), Bruce Devlin ($119,598), Tommy Aaron ($113,642), Tom Weiskopf ($113,381) and Bruce Crampton ($111,010).

Kansas City Chiefs a 20-17 victory over a New Orleans Saints team that was a two touchdown underdog before the nationally televised contest began.

Stenerud had earlier kicked a 12-yard field goal and Len Dawson completed touchdown passes to Willie Frazier and Otis Taylor.

With 01 seconds left in the game and the Chiefs facing a fourth down on the New Orleans 15, Stenerud—with the millions of fans watching on TV remembering his famous miss last Christmas Day against Miami—calmly kicked the field goal that won it.

The Saints, capitalizing on three Chiefs' fumbles, scored on a 31-yard field goal by Charlie Durkee, a 35-yard fumble return by Doug Wyatt and an eight-yard pass from Archie Manning to tight end Dave Parks.

The Saints' first opportunity game when Larry Marshall fumbled on a kickoff in the second quarter. Ray Hester recovered on the Chiefs' 27. The Saints couldn't move the ball so Durkee kicked his 31-yard field goal with 12:37 left in the second quarter.

But on the next series, Kansas City drove from its own 23 deep into Saints territory but stalled on the New Orleans five. Stenerud tied it 3-3 with a 12-yard field goal with 0:44 left in the half.

With 4:33 left in the same quarter, Chiefs rookie Jeff Kinney fumbled when hit hard at the 30 and Wyatt, the Saints safety, picked it up and ran it down the sidelines 35 yards for the score.

The Chiefs tied it 10-10 with 43 seconds remaining in the half by driving, in 12 plays, 65 yards for a touchdown. The score came when Dawson passed four yards to Frazier who was by himself in the end zone.

The Saints second touchdown was set up when Dawson fumbled on the New Orleans 22 and Richard Neal recovered on the 26.

The exciting drive included a 17-yard pass from Manning to Parks, a 15-yarder to Margene Adkins and an 11-yard pass to Danny Abramowicz. The Saints made it 17-10 when Manning tossed eight yards to Parks in the end zone with 1:39 left in the third quarter.

The drive went 74 yards in nine plays. But Kansas City evened it up with 13:18 remaining in the game when Dawson threw a 21-yard pass to Taylor who caught the pass all alone on the Saints 10 and jogged into the end zone.

Defensive end snags Dawson

CAUGHT BY New Orleans defensive end Owens (72) is Kansas City Chiefs' quarterback Lenny Dawson (16), who was back to pass. Dawson was thrown for a 10-yard loss to the Saints 45-yard line in the first quarter Monday night in New Orleans. Kansas City defeated the Saints 20-17. (UPI Telephoto).

Oklahoma football coach is worried about false security

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI)—It's not on the schedule, but a foe called "false security" is one of the chief worries of Oklahoma football coach Chuck Fairbanks.

Fairbanks, whose runaway Sooners have scored 117 points and allowed only three in obliterating two opponents, said Monday he was concerned because of some mistakes that might mean defeat in a closer game.

"We have to make sure we don't get lulled to sleep because we have been making some mistakes and getting away with it," Fairbanks said. "We have to try to get excellence of performance, do all the little things well that make you win. When the competition gets close little things are what make the difference."

Fairbanks said it is easy to develop "a false sense of security" when winning by the lopsided margins that have marked the Sooners' first two games.

"For instance, we had an unnecessary penalty during the drive in which Oregon got its field goal Saturday," Fairbanks said. "In a close game that might have made the difference between winning and losing. We had a player who used poor judgment. It seemed insignificant, and it was in this particular game, but in another situation it could have cost the ball game."

While fans might find it hard to criticize a running game that produced 604 yards in the 68-3 victory over Oregon, Fairbanks saw room for improvement.

"We noticed some blocking in our interior line, where we needed better coordination between the blocks and where the runners were going," he said. The Sooners coach said there were still too many penalties, particularly in open field kick returning. Several good returns were pulled back because of clips.

"We will have to work harder to get in position to throw the block, and not throw the block at all unless we are in position," he said.

On the plus side, Fairbanks said the overall execution of the offense was improved over the first game, the passers again got good protection and the defense did an excellent job in pass rush and coverage.

John Carroll, starting split end and place-kicker, did not suffer any ligament or cartilage damage to his knee but it will be Wednesday before Fairbanks knows whether Carroll can play against Clemson.

Fairbanks was concerned about the re-injury of Mike Thomas' shoulder. Thomas ran 90 yards for a touchdown the first time he ever handled the ball in a Sooners game, then was hurt on a seven-yard gain the next time he carried.

"We need to get him well," Fairbanks said. "He's a guy we've been counting on to be a very good player for us. But he's been hurt almost since the start of fall practice."

Julius Irving case continues

ATLANTA (UPI)—The already snarled Julius Irving case took two more turns Monday when National Basketball Association Commissioner Walter Kennedy fined the Atlanta Hawks $25,000 and the Hawks responded with an anti-trust suit.

The suit asks for an injunction against Kennedy and the NBA so that Irving may remain with the Hawks. A preliminary hearing on the injunction will be heard in Atlanta Friday morning by U.S. District Judge Richard Freeman.

Irving is the former University of Massachusetts basketball star who played last season with the Virginia Squires of the American Basketball Association, then signed a $1 million contract with the Hawks. A couple of days before the Milwaukee Bucks made him their first-round choice in the annual NBA draft.

Irving has a suit pending in New York aimed at getting him out of the two years remaining on his Squires contract. The Squires are trying to keep him because he averaged 20 points and 19 rebounds as an ABA rookie.

Kennedy had instructed the Hawks and Bucks to get together and work out an agreement regarding Irving. But when the Hawks refused to meet the Bucks asking price for compensation, the matter went before the NBA Board of Governors which awarded Irving to the Bucks.

The Hawks, refusing to accept the board's ruling, kept Irving and used him Saturday and Sunday in games with the Kentucky Colonels.

Kennedy's fine against the Hawks for using Irving was the largest the commissioner, who was given sweeping powers by the NBA board last year, has imposed without league approval. The league's biggest fine was $200,000 against Seattle in the Spencer Haywood case.

"I have sent the following telegram to William Putnam, president of the Atlanta club," Kennedy said Monday in New York.

"For playing Julius Irving in two games over the past weekend in violation of my directives of Sept. 21-22, Atlanta is hereby fined $25,000. Please be advised that those directives are still in full force and effect."

Putnam was not available for comment but Hawks General Manager Richie Guerin said, "our anti-trust suit speaks for itself and I don't think we should comment on the case beyond noting that we feel we are legally and morally right in keeping Julius Irving."

Idaho linemen given awards

MOSEOW (UPI)—Linemen dominated the action today in the presentation of awards by the University of Idaho Vandals football coaching staff.

Robbins said, the offensive award went to guard Bob Van Dyne for good blocking during Idaho's 26-19 loss to Weber State College last Saturday at Ogden.

The defensive award was presented to Alofa Lua Taavaga, a full blooded Samoan defensive end who made 10 tackles during his second game in a Vandals uniform.

Robbins said Lloyd Grimsrud was presented the Vandal award for his overall good play as a defensive tackle. Grimsrud, Robbins said, charged hard all night and forced Weber into two fumbles.

Robbins said mistakes cost his club the Weber game. "We had taken over control of the game in the second half and were moving the ball well offensively," he said, "when three mistakes — two interceptions and a fumble — gave them three gift touchdowns."

Dave Bing is named captain

DETROIT (UPI)—All-star guard Dave Bing has been named captain by the Detroit Pistons for the 1972-73 national basketball association season, it was announced Monday.

"He's our man on the floor," said Coach Earl Lloyd in making the announcement. Bing was the Pistons' No. 1 draft choice in 1966 and has led the team in scoring five times and held the assist crown for six seasons.

Boston outlasts Rangers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mike Walton scored two goals, the last into an empty net with 40 seconds left in the game, to power the Stanley Cup champion Boston Bruins to a 4-2 victory over the New York Rangers Monday night at Madison Square Garden.

Walton had put the Bruins ahead 2-1 at 4:16 of the final period when he beat goalie Ed Giacomin from close range and a short-handed goal by Fred Stanfield three minutes later made it 3-1.

But Walt Tkaczuk tipped Dale Rolfe's blue line slap shot at 18:12 to bring the Rangers within a goal.

Walton picked up a loose puck and fired a 70-foot backhanded shot into an unguarded Ranger net for the final score at 19:20.

Bill Fairbairn opened the scoring for the Rangers at 6:40 of the second period before rookie Murray Wing tied it 1-1 at 12:14 of the middle period.

Southern Cal coach expects tough game with Michigan St.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Coach John McKay doesn't take Big Ten football teams lightly and he expects his University of Southern California Trojans to have a big job on their hands when they meet Michigan State here Saturday night.

"Michigan State is a typical Duffy Daugherty team," McKay told the Southern California Football Writers Monday. "That means it's powerful on defense like all Big Ten teams."

McKay warned his listeners not to underestimate the Spartans because of their 21-16 loss to Georgia Tech which used the explosive passing of Eddie McAsh to put Michigan

State into the hole. And the Trojan coach attributed his team's one-sided, 55-20, victory over Illinois to some breaks in the second half and was not pleased with his team's overall performance.

"We played a sluggish game," he said. "The offense played well but the defense only adequately."

UCLA coach Pepper Rodgers still spoke in awe of the power displayed by Michigan in defeating his Bruins 26-0 and said the Wolverines could be on their way to a return Rose Bowl visit.

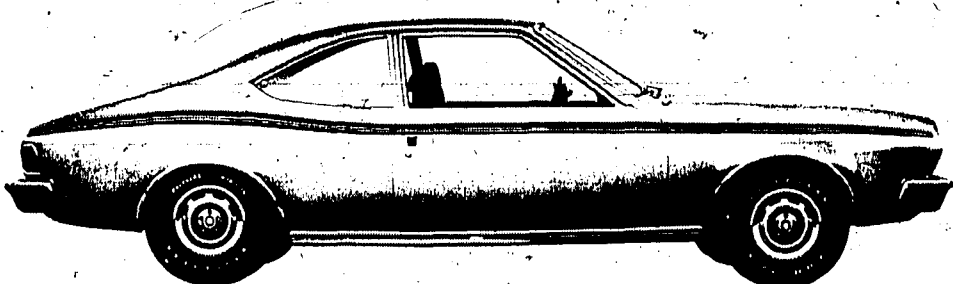

"I would not be surprised if Michigan came back to the Rose Bowl," he said. "They have a tough team that's hard to beat but there are a number of tough teams in their conference, especially Ohio State."

"Michigan played the kind of football that we felt would hurt us. They controlled the ball and marched down the field. Their offense beat our defense and their defense held our offense."

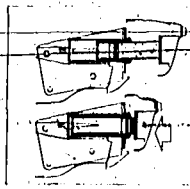

Rodgers, without making excuses, said UCLA's timing could have been off as a result of quarterback Mark Harmon getting hurt and lasting only for the first two sequences. Rob Scribner, who replaced him, had played defense the past two seasons and drew praise from Rodgers for his effort.

Student knows 'fear'

By RUSS JACKSON

PROVO, Utah, (UPI) — Brigham Young University junior Kathy Boswell knows the fear of being a suspected terrorist in Israel.

Miss Boswell was traveling through Europe and the Middle East last May and narrowly missed arriving at Israel's Lod Airport the night of the massacre there.

She was to leave the airport for Paris on that night but changed her plans at the last moment to attend a meeting of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints Mormon.

But Miss Boswell said arriving at the airport the next day was nearly as dangerous as getting there during the terrorist's attack.

"When I got there, the first thing I saw was that there were soldiers all over the place," she said. "Almost literally every foot there'd be a guy with a submachine gun."

And as soon as the Israelis found out about her, changed reservation, she said, they suspected her of being in league with the Arabs.

"When I went to the confirmation desk," Miss Boswell said, "they saw immediately that my original reservation was for the night of the massacre — and they asked me why I had changed."

"And then they checked and found I hadn't reconfirmed my second reservation," she said.

"I don't know why that threw them off, but I guess it sounded like I was in hiding and waiting to see how things would go before I flew out."

Miss Boswell said the Israelis then went through all her baggage several times and found a small package containing a Bible a friend had given her to mail. She said they thought a gun might have been hidden in it.

"They ripped off the brown paper and string and flipped through the Bible, hitting about every page," she said. "I understood why they had to open it, but it still made me mad because it was a gift."

"Then it was frisked in a little curtained room nearby. And believe me, they know how to frisk," Miss Boswell said. But then, instead of being allowed to board her plane, Miss Boswell was called back for more questioning.

"They were giving the final call for my plane, but in no way did I want to break loose and run for it," she said. "They wouldn't have thought two seconds about shooting me down — for as far as they were concerned I was a suspected terrorist."

But finally Miss Boswell was given back all her things and allowed to board the bus going to her plane.

"I got on the airport bus, and by that time I was really in shock," she said, "because I really didn't expect to get through it all."

Federation ready for project plan

BOISE (UPI) — A member of the Federation of Rocky Mountain States told a telecommunications committee today its educational satellite project is ready for "exact planning."

Dr. William Rapp of Denver, Colo., told the committee contracts had been consummated with the office of education as the final link in getting the project off the ground.

The project, when ready for launching in April 1974, will use a space satellite to help meet educational needs of both children and adults in federation member states. Its schedule calls for a Titan III-C launch vehicle to be stationed some 10,000 miles above the Rocky Mountain and Intermountain West.

In addition to member states, Rapp said, the satellite will serve Arizona and Nevada. Its signals will transmit in color and will be capable of sending four sound tracks, making it possible to send lessons in Spanish and Navajo as well as English, he added.

"NASA, then (Public Broadcasting Service) and The Department of Housing and Urban Development are all fascinated by our program," Rapp told the committee. "The nation's eyes will be focused on the federation and the project in 1974."

Earlier, Gov. Cecil D. Andrus, federation chairman, said the satellite program will assist police in assembling data on suspects and automobiles from their patrol cars "within a matter of two or three minutes."

The federation began its two-day conference here today, with delegates from government and private levels of the six member states attending.

Nixon gets nod from union leader

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Thomas W. Gleason, president of the 115,000-member International Longshoremen's Association (ILA), Monday endorsed President Nixon for re-election, reversing the union's traditional Democratic stand.

Gleason, whose union represents East and Gulf Coast longshoremen, said in remarks prepared for a news conference:

"Unfortunately, this year the Democratic party has been captured by elements whose beliefs are not ours and whose policies are alien to our own. Essentially, isolationist in outlook, they would like to see a weakened America and a retreat from world involvement."

Gleason praised Nixon for maintaining "our national power and our commitment to international obligations, while at the same time taking new initiatives to ease world tensions."

Faced with "runaway inflation," Nixon "had the courage to institute price and wage controls," Gleason said. "Although these controls have not always worked fairly, and, indeed, ILA members have lost through Federal Pay Board action, we have always felt that presidential action was necessary to halt the spiraling inflation that was punishing all American workers and consumers."

Gleason also said the ILA "is particularly familiar with his unprecedented efforts to revive the dying American merchant marine."

Spending limit okayed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Ways and Means Committee tentatively approved Monday President Nixon's proposal to put a $250 billion limit on federal spending this fiscal year.

Administration sources have contended — and most of the committee members agreed in public hearings — that without a rigid spending ceiling taxes would have to be increased next year.

Most Democrats had wanted Nixon to spell out what areas of federal spending would be cut to stay within the $250 billion lid. The administration refused to commit itself in advance.

The limit is part of a bill Nixon sent Congress asking that the present temporary $450 billion limit on the amount that the government can go into debt be raised to $465 billion. Without congressional action by Oct. 31, the temporary ceiling would revert to the permanent $400 billion level while the government is already more than $430 billion in debt.

A White House source said minor changes were made in the administration's proposal but that the "total effect of the original language is still there."

Levies certified by the Jerome County auditor show an owner of $10,000 cash value property would be paying $31.10 for county services this year compared to $30.65 a year ago.

On the other hand, Jerome City levies are up to $80.02 on the same piece of property, compared to $70.10 a year ago.

The assessed valuation of Jerome County property has increased to $21.6 million compared to $20.4 million a year ago; an increase in growth of about $1.2 million.

On this basis, the taxpayer would be paying $3.07 on special state levies as compared to $3.23 a year ago.

City taxes within the county on the same $10,000 cash value property this year as compared to last would be: Jerome, $88.02 and $70.10; Eden, $92.13 and $76.26; Hazelton, $71.89 down from $73.95.

School district levies will cost $51.51 compared to $51.35 in Valley School District; No. 312 in Lincoln County, $57.81 and $55.36; No. 331, Minidoka County, $68.52 and $69.52 with bond redemption reduced, and in Jerome District 261, $46.70 this year compared to $63.34 last year, due to final payments on district bonded indebtedness.

Jerome, $4.24 this year to $4.01 last year, First Segregation, $4.43 this year and $4.54 last year.

Fire district levies include $4.75 this year, $3.36 last year, amounting to $125,000 are needed to complete the $255,765 project.

Duff added that the bond costs will be paid through increased monthly sewer charges. The increase is not to exceed a $2.50 raise of the present $1 fee.

The bond election requires a two-thirds majority to pass. Any Paul resident 18 or older can vote.

Registration is not necessary for those who voted in the last city general election, but those who have established residency since the last election must register with the city clerk by Sept. 30.

Lincoln launches fund campaign for swim pool

SHOSHONE — Lincoln County residents are launching a campaign to raise funds for a swimming pool.

The Shoshone Rotary Club is assisted by numerous county residents in sponsoring an old-fashioned auction Saturday at the Lincoln County Fairgrounds at the east edge of Shoshone.

The sale will start at 11 a.m. under direction of Messersmith Auction Service, with auctioneers donating their time.

Myron D. Johnson, chairman of the pool project for the Rotary Club, said a goal of $2,500 has been set by the auction committee.

Mrs. C. L. Peterson Jr., chairman of the county-wide auction committee, said a variety of items has already been donated for the sale.

These range from machinery, clothes to books and clothing. Everything usable is solicited, she said, and the pickup service will be provided at any time if donors will contact her.

• GENERAL TENDENCIES: Good for getting out of any indoor rut into which you have sunk and to see and be with those relatives, neighbors and other companions with whom you have congenial contact. Search out the information that can stand you in good stead, also. Fine for inventive and ingenious activities that bring mental advancement.

APRILS (Mar. 21 to Apr. 14) Spending time with people you like and making new associates, friends as well can turn this into a very constructive day for you. Increase production at your place of business, too. Think along more progressive lines.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Delve into the monetary side of life and begin by making a better budget for yourself that you can really follow. Simplify your life in some way so that clutter does not waste your valuable time. Put some new idea to work right away.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You can easily gain the aims you have in mind if you discuss them with good friends who think logically and cleverly. Enjoy the social side of life at the same time as well. Stop being so fearful of the future.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can improve your image by handling that civic duty very intelligently and getting the approval of bigwigs, the public in general. Some fine talent you have can bring much advancement. Talk less, do more.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Show wisdom and seize those fine opportunities that present themselves today for advancement in either business or social fields. Study further into that data before you get into that new outlet. Don't make any mistakes.

Now the evening can be seen from the romantic standpoint. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) instead of expecting abject obedience from others, you get better results by discussing what you want from them diplomatically now. Delving into that civic affair can bring bigger rewards, benefits than you had anticipated.

CAPRICORN (Dec 22 to Jan 20) You are capable of handling all that work ahead of you with real efficiency, so get right at it instead of going off on some tangent. Find right articles of apparel at right price. Shop around early.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can have a particularly fine day at the amusements that most appeal to you provided you are with congenials. Avoid arguments with uncertain personalities. A show of affection for mate is wise.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Making necessary improvements at home and being sure that appliances are in good working order are your best ways of proceeding now. Buy little thoughtful gifts for those who dwell with you. Show that you really care.

 one of those young people with a peculiar charm all his or her own that will cause others to want to spoil your offspring, to fields as the moving picture industry, the arts, designing, the beauty field, etc. A great flair for precision and neatness. The social nature is very pronounced here, too.

'Tune-Up Now, Avoid Winter Motoring Hassles'

So Says AAA Director Who Offers Tips on Starting, Maintenance And Driving in Snow

By JOHN P. ECK
Director, National Emergency Road Service,
American Automobile Association

Does the thought of wrestling with a stalled engine this winter give you chills? The American Automobile Association says you can avoid this seasonal hassle by putting into practice a few basic guidelines for getting your car under way smoothly.

But well before winter arrives, AAA urges every car owner to take his car in for a complete tune-up and inspection. Especially important is a check of the car's electrical system. In 1971, AAA estimates show 49 per cent of the nation's 82.8 million motoring problems resulted from battery and electrical failures.

Battery Check

Batteries should be checked frequently. At 32 degrees, cranking power is about 40 per cent less than when the temperature is at 80 degrees; and at zero, about 60 per cent less.

During extended periods of cold weather, starting the car and running the engine at least every other day at sufficient RPM's to charge the battery is good insurance against battery failure. If this is done in a garage, be sure to open the garage doors wide enough to protect against the threat of carbon monoxide poisoning.

Do install snow tires well before the first snowfall, and have chains ready in case of a severe snowstorm.

Starting Tips

Once the inspection has been completed, and that first cold morning has arrived, here is AAA's advice on how to get your engine started with a minimum of trouble:

- Make sure the shift selector or gear shift is in neutral. If the car has a manual shift, depress the clutch while starting.

- Avoid a "battery strain" by making certain all electrical accessories (radio, lights, heater) are turned off before using the starter.

ONE OF 82 MILLION — Eighty-two-million calls for help were answered by AAA road service trucks last year. And almost half of them were the result of starting failure. AAA recommends a pre-winter tune-up as one step in making sure your car starts on even the foulest winter days.

- Depress the gas pedal all the way down to the floor once, then hold it halfway down as the starter is engaged. Do not pump the gas pedal, because this can result in flooding.

- Turn the ignition key to "start," but don't hold the key in the start position for more than 10 seconds at a time. Continuous grinding of the starter can damage the battery, and even drain a fully charged one.

- Depress the gas pedal slightly to keep the engine running if the engine starts and then dies a number of times.

- Start with an "easy" foot on the accelerator and slip the clutch in second gear. Don't spin the wheels. You'll find that traction is greatest just before the wheels spin.

- If the wheels should spin, try rocking the car forward and backward. If you've dug yourself into a pocket, use sand or traction mats to get out. Keep the front wheels pointed straight ahead when possible.

- Once the car is underway, keep going.

'Morning Sick' Brakes Caused by Moisture

By PAUL LEE

Chief Sales Engineer, Hayboston Div., Hayboston-Manhattan, Inc.

"Do you ever have the feeling that your brakes aren't working right when you first apply them in the morning? You may feel your car pull to one side. Braking action may be erratic, uneven."

Or perhaps you find it takes longer than usual to stop from moderate speeds. If you have experienced these symptoms, don't worry! Your brakes probably have a touch of morning sickness.

All automotive braking systems use friction to stop the car. This friction is created when the brake lining presses against the braking surface (brake drum or disc brake rotor). Ideally, the brake lining and brake drums — or brake rotor, if you have disc brakes — should be dry. That's when the maximum coefficient of friction will be developed and the brakes will work best.

But sometimes moisture from overnight dew or extremely humid air gets on both the brake lining and the brake drum or rotor surface. Usually a gentle braking action will cure this problem. When you back out of your parking space or driveway the first brake application may be all that's needed to drive off the moisture.

When you apply your brakes the friction created when the lining and drum or rotor surfaces come together builds up heat. This heat usually warms the braking surfaces just enough to evaporate the moisture.

If moisture buildup is heavy, however, you may experience the effects of uneven braking. The best way to avoid such brake morning sickness is to apply gentle brake pedal pressure for a distance of about 50 feet — 6 to 7 car lengths — while moving forward at about 10 to 15 mph.

Power Steering Problems Traced to Leaking Fluid

Safe winter driving insurance involves many pre-season checks, but one vital system that's often overlooked is your car's power steering.

How can you tell when something's wrong? It's easy. You can feel trouble. You can hear trouble. And, you can see it.

Your hands on the wheel are a pretty sensitive indicator of steering problems. Does your car steer hard in one or both directions? After you make a turn, does your car "straighten out" readily? Does your car "wander" on the straightaway?

Trouble is easy to hear, too. Any rattling, clattering, knocking, squealing or howling you hear when you make a turn indicates a problem.

Next time you park your car for awhile, check the pavement under your car. A spot of slippery-feeling fluid on your garage floor or driveway could very well be hydraulic fluid that's dripped from your power steering system.

Exhaust Pipe Deposits Show Engine Woes

A dry, sooty deposit on the inside of your car's tail pipe is the tip-off that the engine is wasting gas. It's not burning the fuel-air charge in the combustion chamber the way it should, and it shows in the exhaust.

Also, an oily, black deposit is a sign of burning oil, through worn rings, valve guides or other causes.

A normal exhaust pipe should show a crisp, grayish deposit. Soot, except under conditions of excessive choking or city driving, is a sign of wasted gas and the trouble may lie within the carburetor, ignition system or both.

THAT OUGHT TO FIX IT — A minor adjustment on the steering mechanism finishes off the job of pre-winter maintenance on this youngster's car. His dad's vehicle is on the nearby rack, getting ready for the months of rough driving conditions ahead. Now's the time to get your car in shape, too, for care-free winter motoring.

Study Shows That Maintenance Is Key to Control of Emissions

Studies conducted by Olson Laboratories show that acceptable emission performance for most cars can be achieved and sustained only by proper maintenance and repair. The study showed that only those tune-ups performed to reduce exhaust emissions are effective.

Olson reported that high emissions can be lowered, in most cases, with engine adjustments and tune-ups performed by a qualified service technician.

The results of the studies, summarized in the Olson report, suggested:

FIRST, that the incorporation of emission controls on cars does not assure continued low emissions because the control systems tend to deteriorate in their performance;

SECOND, with proper maintenance and adjustments, vehicles will continue to operate with lower emission levels.

Olson recommends the use of infra-red exhaust analyzer equipment by qualified service personnel in order that accurate inspection can be performed — and for determining corrective adjustments, service or replacement. This type of equipment measures the hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions produced by car engines and provides other information about their performance and economy.

Various ignition system malfunctions, which can be detected with this type of equipment, will usually increase undesirable emissions and reduce performance and economy.

Checking emissions of thousands of cars to amass their data, technicians at Olson Laboratories discovered one common factor: No matter how effective anti-pollution devices are on cars, they still have to be maintained for lowest possible emissions.

A DVICE TO WOMEN

who DRIVE... and MEN. Too...

from DeDe BENSON... a woman who does

Dear DeDe:

This may seem like a silly problem but it is quite important to me. Don and I have been dating for about six months and I think we're getting serious. There's one thing about Don that really bugs me. It's his car. It's really filthy. He washes it about twice a year and I don't think the inside has ever felt a cleaning cloth. When I mention it, he just gets uptight and says he doesn't have time and that going to a car wash costs too much money. I'm a neat person. How can I convince him to clean his car so I won't be ashamed to ride in it?

GINA W.

Milwaukee, Wis.

Dear GINA:

One hint in your letter may help provide the answer. You mention that Don is concerned with the cost of a car wash. Ask him if he's considered the cost of keeping the car dirty. A clean car brings in hundreds of dollars extra at trade-in time. A car that is not cleaned, particularly of road salts and other chemicals, deteriorates more quickly. Why not schedule some car washing dates with Don? It's really good, clean fun.

Dear DeDe:

Last week, I brought my car in to McCarthy's Service (not real name) to have my shock absorbers replaced. I have no complaints about the work done. But a day after, I was driving to work and my whole exhaust system fell off the car, causing me to be late for work and tieing my car up for another day. Now, I know that the shocks and exhaust system have nothing to do with each other but how could a mechanic work on the shocks and not notice that the exhaust had rotted away? How about telling these guys to get with it?

SARAH D.

Silver Spring, Md.

Dear SARAH:

I don't blame you for being angry. But I suspect your mechanic is the victim of overreaction to an unfortunate trend in this country. Many auto service people have become so sensitive to the charge of overselling that they have become reluctant to suggest even needed services. To avoid your problem in the future, try this. Find a service person that you really trust. Then, when you bring your car in, ask him specifically to be on the lookout for needed repairs and services. Leave your phone number with him so that he may call you before doing any work you didn't specifically request. By displaying your trust and asking for this extra attention you can avoid the problem you described in your letter.

Dear DeDe:

When they introduced compulsory vehicle inspection in our community, it was presented as something that would really make cars safer. You couldn't prove it by me. Five days after my car passed inspection it suddenly stalled in traffic. As a result, I got hit from the rear. What kind of fraud are they foisting off on us?

IRMA Y.

Oakville, Ont.

Dear IRMA:

Before blaming the vehicle inspection in your community, consider this: It is true that such inspections cover vital safety items like brakes, steering, lights and wipers. But they are not meant to cover the entire car.

Do You Know Correct Answers? If Not You've Lots of Company

Do you know how often to have your engine tuned, how to start a flooded engine and what causes your engine to keep running after you've turned off the ignition? If you do, you're a pretty "with it" motorist. If you don't, you've got a lot of company.

Questions on tune-up, hard starting and after-run gave viewers the most difficulty in the recent National Automotive Trouble Quiz. The television quiz, produced by the Fram Corporation, was aired nationally and posed questions on car maintenance to the audience.

Three groups of drivers — driver ed students, their parents and members of the Sports Car Club of America — served as a cross-section of the motoring public in answering the quiz questions.

One question, "How often should you have your car tuned?" stumped more than half of the panelists. They failed to guess the correct answer which is "once a year for cars that travel an average of 12,000 miles."

On the question, "How do you start a flooded engine?" more than a quarter of the panelists failed to answer correctly. The right reply was, "Depress the accelerator all the way to the floor, hold it there and crank the engine until it clears itself and fires."

Fall is Nature's way of warning us that winter will be along.

In preparation, most of us squeeze every last bit of fun out of every crispy day.

There are football games to go to, drives to take in the canyons, walks to take lightly bundled, and a million things to buy before the big freeze settles in.

Healthy Voltage Reserve Like Having Extra Cash in the Bank

"Voltage Available" in your car's ignition system, much like a checking account, can sometimes become overdrawn. Chart (left) shows a healthy system with 25 kV available (5 kV required to start and 20-kV reserve). A worn system on a damp or cold day has less "VA," though with old spark plugs more is needed. Chart (right) shows such a system with 20 kV available (15 kV required to start and only 5 kV reserve). Avoid ignition bankruptcy—let your favorite service man check your "voltage account."

Wouldn't you know that day you couldn't get your car started you also got a letter from your bank saying your account was overdrawn? Strange as it may appear, there is a parallel between these two unfortunately common misfortunes.

It's easy to see why you got that overdraft from the bank.

Your income couldn't match your outgo. The same situation probably occurred inside the engine of your car and resulted in the starting trouble, says Champion Spark Plug Company.

System Explained
The ignition system income is called Voltage Available.

In simple terms, that's the voltage that is provided by the electrical system and boosted up by the coil to fire the spark plugs. The "outgo" is called Voltage Required, or the juice needed to fire the spark plugs efficiently.

A healthy system would provide about 25,000 volts to the plugs. When the plugs are in good condition, they require about 7,000 volts to fire. All things being equal, there should be plenty of Voltage Reserve in the ignition bank.

So to assure starting success this winter add to your ignition system bank account with a complete tune-up including new spark plugs. That's especially true if it's been more than a year or 10,000 miles since your last tune-up.

Revolutionary Engine Welcomes Motorists to New 'Rotary' Club

Welcome to the rotary club — the rotary club of Dr. Felix Wankel, whose revolutionary new engine made its appearance in Germany in 1956, and is possibly going to be the power plant for many automobiles in ten years.

The rotary-powered Mazda, made by Toyo Kogyo Company in Hiroshima, Japan, has already made its appearance in this country with the RX2 sedan.

Exports in the automobile industry say there is a real possibility that domestic made rotary-engined cars will be in the nation's showrooms on a limited basis by 1974 or 1975.

Sooner or later you may be driving — maybe even owning — one of these remarkable cars, so you'll want to know a little about what makes the engine go.

It's a gasoline-burning, internal-combustion engine which uses rotary motion to drive the wheels instead of the up-and-down motion of a piston engine. If you were to take the cover off the top of the rotary and look down into it, you would see what looks like a triangle turning inside a chamber which is shaped like a slightly flattened circle.

Three Chambers

Each side of the triangle blocks off an arc of the circular chamber to form three smaller, crescent-shaped chambers. As the triangle, or rotor, turns, the positions of the three crescent-shaped chambers move around inside the large, circular chamber. The intake-compression-ignition-expansion-exhaust sequence occurs in the three crescent-shaped chambers, causing the rotor to spin.

The rotor, which turns not on its axis but in a slightly eccentric motion, is attached to a drive shaft to turn the car's wheels.

The rotary motion is almost vibrationless, and it constitutes one of the rotary engine's most significant advantages over the piston engine.

Banshee Squeal Under Hood Calls for Belt Attention

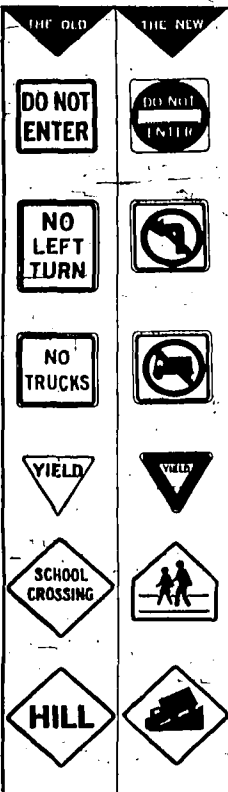

If your car has power steering and when you make a hard turn, you hear noises like the squeals of a wild banshee coming from somewhere under the hood, chances are pretty good you have a set of V-belts that are loose. And loose belts could also be the reason why your air-conditioner didn't cool up to par last summer — or why your generator or alternator isn't charging properly, or your engine is overheating.

Fan, water pump, power steering, air-conditioning, generator or alternator — all these are operated by V-belts. And, to do their jobs efficiently, The Gatos Rubber Company says these belts must be tensioned properly, to factory specifications.

Your service technician can provide this service.

You can easily check the belts yourself. With engine off and hood up, press down with your thumb on the belts midway between the pulleys. If there's more than just a little give, the belts are probably too loose. But, unless you have the proper equipment and are especially handy with tools, let your serviceman do the replacing.

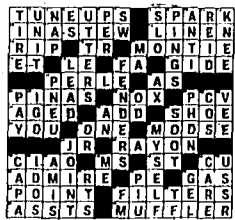

Universal signs such as those at the right above are rapidly replacing those to the left for faster delivery of warning traffic messages hitherto dependent on words.

Universal Signs Help All Drivers

Orators used to speak of One World. Highway sign designers are now thinking in terms of One Road.

While European road signs have long contained symbols rather than words to provide information, North American signs usually have depended on English language reading ability. As shown above, a simplified system of road signs will be introduced on this side of the Atlantic. In this form of highway heraldry, a circle with a slash across it means No (i.e. No Left Turn or No Trucks). The system should help North American travelers in Europe as well as Europeans traveling here.

Yesterday's Winters Teach Today's Driver New Tricks

By M. A. McNEIL
Reprinted from
Iowa City Press-Citizen

Getting automobiles ready for winter use once was a far different matter than it is today.

What the motorist of the past might experience was outlined by Jim Fordice, president of the Iowa Valley Chapter of the Antique Auto Club of America and the owner of several antique cars himself.

Cars and service haven't always been what they are today. Back then, antifreeze just wasn't available. Those who were hardy and enthusiastic enough to drive in winter weather put alcohol or kerosene in their radiators hoping to prevent freeze-ups.

Today, "winter" or low viscosity oil is taken for granted. Kerosene was also used in the past to dilute the oil to ease cold weather cranking and allow it to circulate in archaic "splash" or dipper lubrication systems.

Even diluted oil could be mighty stiff on a cold morning. It wasn't too uncommon to tie three or four corn cobs together with a piece of wire and set them afloat under the crank case. A few minutes of this treatment would allow the engine to turn over freely.

As well as the modern battery functions, it is still a source of doubt on the coldest mornings. There was no doubt in granddad's mind; he knew his battery lacked sufficient output.

He took the necessary precaution of keeping his battery behind the kitchen stove overnight. Blankets were sometimes placed over the engine to prevent frost from forming on the plug wires, coil, and distributor.

All of these precautions and the bitterest of sweat words didn't always guarantee an easy start. After the battery wore down, his cranking arm wore out and his patience wore thin, granddad still had an ace up the sleeve of his mackinaw.

He could harness the team to the front bumper and give his old tin liz a pull. That failing, he could hitch up a buck-board and leave that infernal contraption sitting until warmer weather.

If you don't have ready access to a team of horses, corn cobs and kerosene, and lack a kitchen stove to keep your battery behind, the best thing to do is to see an auto serviceman about winterizing your car.

Properly Aligned Wheels Add Miles to Tire Life

By CHUCK STORBERG
Chassis Product Manager, TRW Replacement Division

Just as there are timing and ignition gap settings that combine to provide a well tuned, efficient engine, there are camber, caster, and "Toe" settings to maintain the operating quality of the chassis.

These are adjustable angles that must be maintained to provide a true running front end that will allow tires to give their maximum service life.

The camber angle is a measure of the tilt of the top of the front wheels to or away from the vehicle body. Ideally, for long tire life, the wheels should be close to a true vertical position when the car is in operation and at its stable riding height.

This prevents excessively high pressure on any portion of the tread where it meets the road that could cause unusual tire wear on one section of the tire surface.

Concerned with Steering
Caster is the alignment angle used to measure the forward or rearward tilt of the steering axis of the front wheels, when checking from the side view. Its effect on the vehicle is mainly concerned with steering and handling.

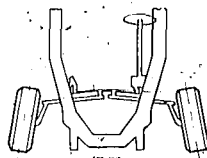

Only under very extreme condition can caster be a tire wear factor.

Other handling problems calling for front end service would occur before tire wear became a problem.

Of the three adjustable alignment angles "Toe" has the greatest effect on tire life. The "Toe" specification concerns the ability of the wheels to roll ahead freely without seuffing across the road surface.

The ability to hold the proper "Toe" setting is directly affected by the condition of the parts in the steering system. This chassis system which includes the idler and pitman arms, tie rod ends, and centerlinks, connects the two front wheels and has the job of transmitting the driver's directional desires to them.

ing system. This chassis system which includes the idler and pitman arms, tie rod ends, and centerlinks, connects the two front wheels and has the job of transmitting the driver's directional desires to them.

Battery at Fault in Only 10 Percent of 'No-Starts'

Blaming the battery for starting failure is like blaming your nose for a cold. Both are usually victims of something else that's amiss.

According to battery-maker Globe-Union Inc., the battery is only to blame 10 percent of the time when the engine won't turn over. If the battery is run down during unsuccessful starting attempts, most likely it lost its pep due to some other cause.

According to Richard Burkard, Globe Union's quality assurance manager, "Either the car will start within the

Toe settings
Although the parts in the steering system don't support a great deal of weight, they are subject to jarring, twisting, and turning forces that tend to wear them and create looseness. The change in the relationship of the parts to each other that is created by this wear can lead to variable or incorrect "Toe" settings that are a real hazard to tire life.

Maintaining the proper "Toe" and camber alignment in a vehicle is critical to obtaining the longest possible life from your tires, but alignment alone is not the whole story. Wheel bearing condition, tire inflation, shock absorbers, wheel balance, and driving habits, all have a big effect on tire life.

All these factors have to be considered, and corrections made when problems exist, before the wheel alignment can be really successful at helping prolong tire life.

It is important to remember that because the suspension systems are constantly changing due to parts wear and sag factors, alignment should be checked periodically. Be sure that the wheels are running straight and true; this is the way wheel alignment saves tires.

An untuned car is starting trouble.

It's more than just a slogan.

Much more. Winter tests on motorists' cars showed that untuned cars had over twice the "won't starts" tuned cars had.

A major reason for this is worn spark plugs. They demand twice the voltage of plugs in good condition. And on a cold day, your battery supplies less voltage. When the supply can't meet the demand, your car won't start. No matter how hard you try.

So please consider our "slogan" and see your mechanic for his engine tune-up now—before trouble strikes. You'll enjoy dependable starts. Plus better acceleration and gas mileage. And reduced emissions, too.

Unique winter starting tests certified by the United States Auto Club involved 110 motorists in Sparta, New Jersey. Half of their cars were given a tune-up while the remaining cars were left in "as is" condition. After three months of normal use, the untuned cars had over twice as many "won't starts" as the tuned cars. The untuned cars averaged 5% poorer gas mileage, too. These wasted gas dollars—plus the cost of just one "won't start" service call—could just about pay for a tune-up!
